PRESIDENT EISENHOWER . . . Sets Popularity Record

Ike's Margin Huge But Loses Congress

Soviet Offers Troops

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Two Soviet satellites, Romania and Czechoslovakia, offered today to contribute troops to the international force which Dag Hammarskjöld, UN secretary-general, hopes to rush to the Middle East to police the battle area.

MOSCOW (AP)—Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov called on the United Nations today to end the "armed aggression" of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt, and offered Russian troops to help do the job.

Zhukov was addressing the gigantic Red Square celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution's 39th anniversary.

Diplomats of the United States, Britain, France and all other members of the Atlantic Alliance except Iceland and Denmark stayed away in protest against the Soviet intervention in Hungary. (See also Page 3).

Asian and African diplomats were solidly in attendance. Several hundred thousand civilians shouted "glory to the Soviet Union" as they marched almost endlessly through Red Square.

FLY-FAST OMITTED

The usual fly-past of jet bombers and fighters was omitted, presumably because of a low overcast. The 21-minute procession of Soviet army units through the square showed no new military equipment. There was the usual display of motorized guns, troop carriers, armored cars, rocket launchers and heavy anti-aircraft cannon.

Civilian marchers carried banners demanding "Hands off Egypt" and "Out of Egypt, imperialist aggressors." Other banners praised the Hungarian workers for defeating fascism.

The wartime Soviet hero told the mass rally:

"The Soviet Union calls upon the United Nations resolutely to stop the armed aggression of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt and actively to support the Arab peoples in their struggle for freedom and independence."

"As regards the Soviet Union, she is prepared, in accordance with a UN decision to take a real part with her armed forces in the liquidation of this aggression."

Zhukov's speech renewed demands for intervention in Egypt voiced two days ago by Premier Bulganin.

RECORDS SET

President Eisenhower's victory was the greatest Republican presidential win in U.S. history.

It was only the second time that a President of one party was elected while both Houses of Congress were won by the other.

Ike's electoral college vote margin has been exceeded only twice before, both by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Democrats Gain Edge in Both Houses

WASHINGTON (CP)—A troubled United States electorate has turned to a Republican president and a Democratic Congress to guide its destinies in a war-threatened world.

Once again, as in 1952, the sound of distant gunfire casts its shadow over the campaign. And for the second time, by an even more emphatic margin, the voters turned to Dwight Eisenhower.

They gave him 457 of the 531 votes in the electoral college and approximately 58 per cent of the popular vote—both figures in excess of his 1952 victory—as he resoundingly defeated Adlai Stevenson, his Democratic challenger, for the second time. But the same returns that gave overwhelming majorities to Eisenhower in state after state brought news of Democratic victories in congressional returns.

Senate Loss Bitter Blow to GOP

They recaptured the House of Representatives by a margin that appeared, in incomplete returns, to be as large or larger than the 232-to-203 edge they gained in the off-year election of 1954. They led the Republicans 49 to 46 in the Senate with a lead in the remaining seat.

Loss of the Senate was a particularly bitter blow to the Republicans, who had hoped the drawing power of Eisenhower at the head of the ticket would enable them to erase the 49-to-47 margin the Democrats had held for the last two years.

More than a century ago another general, Zachary Taylor, found himself faced with an opposition legislature after the 1848 election. Taylor, a Whig, also was given a Democratic Governor Arthur G. Langlie, the president's hand-picked candidate to unseat Washington's Senator Warren G. Magnuson, found the job too much for him and Douglas McKay, who resigned as secretary of the interior to contest Wayne Morse's seat in Oregon, was defeated by the popular ex-Republican.

There were a couple of notable exceptions to the trend. John Sherman Cooper, whom

HMCS Magnificent May Be Used As Mobile Base

(See Also Page 3)

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today announced Canada will offer a Canadian contingent of more than 1,000 men to the international United Nations force for the Middle East.

Mr. St. Laurent said in a written statement handed to reporters following a three-hour Cabinet meeting that Canada "will be prepared to have this force lifted by the RCAF to the Middle East."

The statement said:

"To comply with the resolutions of the United Nations the Canadian government has agreed to make an offer of a Canadian contingent to the emergency international United Nations force for the Middle East. This proposal is subject to adjustment and/or re-arrangement—after consultation with the United Nations commander."

"Arrangements have already been made for a group of Canadian officers to be available to day for consultation with the UN commander (Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada) in New York as soon as he arrives."

The statement said the Canadian contingent would be augmented by ordinance, army service corps and medical and dental detachments to ensure that the group is self-contained and can operate independently from its own base.

This was learned unofficially today following an announcement from Vancouver that the B.C. Milk Board has increased the wholesale price for class one milk (with a 4 per cent butterfat content) by 12 cents a 100 pounds.

MOBILE BASE

It added Canada proposes to provide this contingent with a temporary mobile Canadian base for the first phase of its policing operations.

"The Canadian government," the statement continued, "is prepared to use HMCS Magnificent (aircraft carrier) for the purpose of transporting vehicles and stores to the Middle East and for use as a temporary mobile Canadian base for rations, medical supplies, ammunition, fuel and limited accommodation stores."

"HMCS Magnificent will also provide a small hospital to accommodate the sick and injured in the force; accommodation for a force headquarters and com-

Russians Shell Hospitals In Budapest; Food Scarce

By LYNN HEINZERLING

VIENNA (AP)—The shelling of Budapest by Soviet troops reached its highest point Tuesday night, and food in some areas of the city was running out.

Trustworthy information on the besieged city, received in Austria today, gave this picture:

Soviet forces have been systematically trying to wipe out pockets of resistance. Hospitals and clinics were among the targets. At a time Tuesday when Moscow was broadcasting that all resistance had been liquidated, shelling of the city was increasing.

A score of Russian tanks were reported destroyed in one engagement between Russians and Hungarians near the French Legation. This and other legations have been damaged.

About 700 Hungarians continued today to resist in the rubble of the barracks. In some cases women were manning the guns.

RADIO OFF AIR

The Hungarian government radio stations abruptly went off the air at mid-day without giving a reason, but there still were scattered reports of occasional transmissions from the insurgents.

In London, Lord John Hope, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, said reports to Britain indicated fighting was still going on in Budapest late Tuesday night despite repeated Russian demand for surrender of the rebels' arms.

battle, with many Soviet tanks and artillery weapons shelling parts of the town. The report said resistance centred in the capital's districts of Transtadt and Kohanya.

The Bavarian radio network at Gounich quoted a rebel radio broadcast as saying Dunapentele still was in the hands of the insurgents.

Russian tanks and troops launched their attack Sunday to wipe out the Hungarian bid for independence. All telephone and telegraph communications between Vienna and Budapest still were cut today. A similar communications blackout covered neighboring Romania.

Radio Budapest, voice of the new Soviet-installed Hungarian government, Tuesday night broadcast a pledge of "eternal friendship" with the Soviet Union, on the 39th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

REJECT AID

Radio Budapest also turned down Western offers of relief supplies, saying "our pride forbids us to accept the imperialist aid." It said assistance was pouring in from Russia and that Romania had promised to send building materials, foods and medicines.

Radio Pees, a station in southern Hungary now held by the Russians, called for assistance of the population in disarming rebel bands. The Soviet commander there said Russian guns would be turned on any house from which rebels were firing.

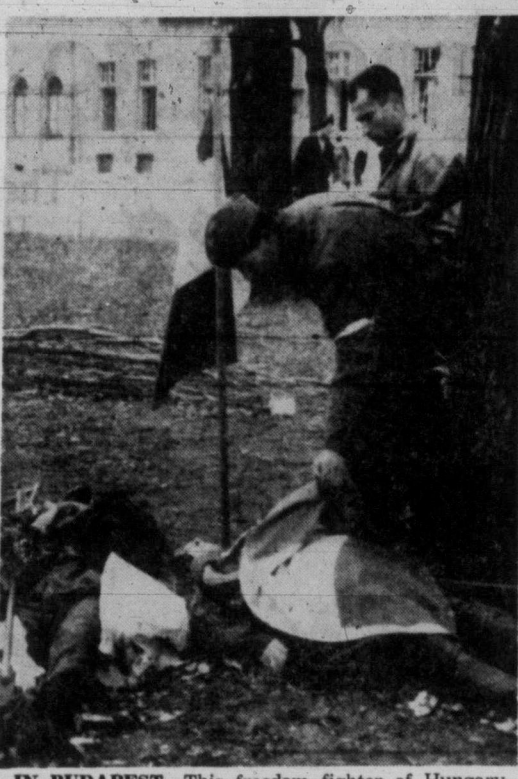

Radio Free Europe quoted a broadcast from Rakoczy Radio, a rebel transmitter in southwestern Hungary, as saying:

"The Russians demand that we lay down our arms. We won't do it, and if it is necessary we will fight to our last drop of blood."

Other information reaching Vienna said Soviet troops had fired on the Yugoslav legation in Budapest, killing a young diplomat and wounding several members of the legation staff.

Protests against the Soviet action in Hungary erupted at Luxembourg, where a group of 2,000 demonstrators stormed into the Soviet legation, tossed furniture out windows and burned it in the courtyard.

A foreign ministry official in New Delhi said Russia's Premier Bulganin had replied to Prime Minister Nehru's message expressing India's concern at developments in Hungary. He said Bulganin blamed "foreign influences" for the Hungarian uprisings.

Hungarian-Canadians Mock Ontario Couple

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—Hungarian-Canadians gathered Tuesday night in an angry crowd in front of the home of Michael Nadas, a Hungarian who returned from his homeland this week and said he saw nothing of revolt or bloodshed.

The crowd paraded in front of Nadas' house carrying placards which read: "Go back to Russia." The group was dispersed by police.

Nadas and his wife rode out of Hungary, where they were visiting, last weekend on a Red Cross truck returning to Vienna after delivering medical supplies.

Nadas was quoted in an interview Tuesday as saying he was in Budapest last Friday and saw little cause for alarm. He said: "It was peaceful enough in Budapest when we left on Friday."

Police went to Nadas' house after they were told of threats being made against his safety.

go-lucky attitude toward the exigencies of their mobile life. In fact they like it and have a lot of fun figuring out angles for smoothing the way. Like, for instance, they wear everything but their suits in nylon so frequent one-night stops don't create a laundry problem. There is always a handy wash basin.

Their favorite occupations include eating and movies. If they are in town a day before a concert they usually manage to squeeze in a movie between chores and practice.

They like cooking, too, but have not yet quite solved the problem of how to indulge in this pastime while on tour.

Top Canadian Pianist Plays Here Thursday

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON
Times Music Critic

Malcolm Troup is a Canadian musician who, in an intensely competitive field, has risen above the general level of good and proficient young pianists who receive encouraging and somewhat indulgent reviews.

He has succeeded in compelling the serious attention of seasoned critics in London, Toronto, Hamburg, Stuttgart, Bergen, Manchester, Salzburg, Vienna and Oslo. Their comments indicate that they believe him to be a major talent in the rising generation of piano virtuosos.

Victoria Municipal Chapter, IODE, which is sponsoring Troup in a concert at Oak Bay Junior High School, Thursday night, is to be lauded for bringing fellow Canadians an opportunity to hear him.

It is too often the case that Canadians are the last to observe and acknowledge the talents that have developed in their midst, altogether too few organizations being willing to seek out and sponsor such talent.

In a letter to friends in this city, fellow Canadian and native Victorian who has attained an eminent place in pianistic circles abroad, Robin Wood, has warm words of praise for Malcolm Troup after hearing him in London.

"Don't fail to hear him if you get the opportunity," is Wood's advice.

The pianist has chosen an excellent program for his concert here, which will begin at 8:30.

the president recalled from his post as ambassador to India, successfully returned to the Senate in Kentucky after an absence of two years, downing former Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby.

State Attorney-General Jacob K. Javits bested New York City's Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., in New York to win an important seat from the Democrats.

Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams, bucking the Republican tide, won an unprecedented fourth two-year term and loomed large in future Democratic political plans.

The popular governor has intimated that this will be his last term in the State House—that he plans to have a crack at the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Charles Potter in 1958. By 1960, he could rise still higher.

Foster Furcolo, a Democrat who startled the experts by giving Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall a down-to-the-wire battle in Massachusetts two years ago, had better luck this year in a try for the governorship. He defeated Sumner G. Whitliff impressively to take the post vacated by Republican Christian Herter.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE OUT

A couple of candidates who ran independently after losing in their party's state primaries got nowhere, running a poor third and failing to force the defeat of the men who beat them.

Glenn Taylor, the banjo-playing former senator who ran for vice-president on Henry Wallace's Progressive party ticket in 1948, ran against Frank Church, who beat him in the Idaho senatorial primary. Mr. Church beat him badly and ousted old-guard Republican Senator Herman Welker into the bargain.

In Utah, the voters failed to sympathize with J. Bracken Lee, the isolationist governor, who wouldn't pay his income tax. Denied renomination in the primary, Lee finished a bad last behind Republican George D. Clyde.

As the campaign started, the chief cause for discontent appeared to be in some agricultural areas, where farmers tended to blame Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson's flexible price-support system for a falling-off in prices.

The Democrats wooed the farmers vigorously, promising a return to the high, rigid supports offered by Democratic presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

None of the farm states switched to Stevenson, but a few quipped Republicans at the congressional level.

Republican fears that the civil rights issue would cost them votes in the south also proved groundless. There had been a wave of southern resentment over last year's decision by the United States Supreme Court outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

Although Chief Justice Earl Warren, a former Republican governor of California, was the target of considerable southern abuse, it soon became apparent that the Democrats were split on the issue. Stevenson himself came out strongly in support of the court's decision.

Even though some dissident Democrats threw their support behind third-party candidates in the south, Eisenhower's margins were never in danger. None of the independents polled enough votes to affect the outcome in any state.

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin has assured India's Prime Minister Nehru that Russia will negotiate with the Hungarian government on withdrawal of Soviet troops "when peace and order is restored" in Hungary, it was announced here today.

Bulganin, replying to an Indian note expressing concern and distress over the situation, said Soviet troops intervened in Hungary only after "counter-revolutionary elements" had taken over.

Bulganin was understood to have promised that he would send Nehru another message on the subject.

Steel Smelter In Crow's Nest

French Group Backs Western Canada's First Plant; Will Cost $5 Million

CALGARY (CP)—Construction of a $5,000,000 steel smelter at Burmis at the eastern end of the Crow's Nest Pass will get under way in the next few days, W. A. Kovach, Social Credit MLA for Pincher Creek-Crow's Nest said Tuesday.

He predicted in an interview the new industry and first steel smelter in Western Canada would eventually transform the area into the "little Pittsburgh" of Alberta.

Consultations were held in Calgary Monday between a French banking and industrial group and T. A. Brusset, president of West Canadian Petroleum, affiliated with West Canadian Collieries which has extensive coal interests in the pass.

Mr. Kovach said the group has found an economical way to smelt low-grade ore in the area which could not be processed by present methods. Limestone deposits are also nearby.

"Phosphate contained in the ore could be used in fertilizer manufacture. This would replace supplies brought in from the United States for mixing holes."

Members of the French group involved in the project are M. A. de Boissieu, president of the Union Europeenne Bank, Paris; M. Dhavernas, Montreal; M. E. de Lauriston, Paris.

Korean Plane Missing; Attacked by Red Jets

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean government said two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters attacked two South Korean F-51 propeller-driven fighters today. The South Koreans said one of their planes was missing.

An announcement said the F-51s were on a regular training flight "bound for the west coast," but did not pinpoint the attack location.

One of the planes was said to have returned with 20 bullet holes.

British Troops Go Off to War: -- Nightly Movie, Queue for Rum

By JOHN CRIDER

AT SEA WITH THE ROYAL NAVY (UP) (Delayed)—British troops went to war today watching an Alec Guinness movie and drinking rum from a barrel labelled "God Save the Queen."

The movie and the rum were two of the regular routines kept by officers aboard this British cruiser as she moved in to join the bombardment of military objectives at Port Said.

Her captain, a be-medalled veteran of Second World War, said he kept up the normal routine of nightly movies and a daily ration of rum to help keep morale high. But by the look of the crew, they didn't need any boost. Their morale was high already.

The movies were shown in the ship's wardroom. Medical orderlies were already laying it out for use as a surgery when we went into action later, and surgical instruments glinted in the light from the screen.

Outside, seamen were queuing for the daily ration of rum, a tradition in the Royal Navy for over 150 years. It was passed out from a huge oaken cask labelled "God Save the Queen."

The unit to be sent has not yet been selected but it has been decided to draw Canada's UN forces from this country rather than from her NATO brigade in Germany, he said.

Canada does not want to "diminish" her NATO forces overseas, Mr. St. Laurent said. The Canadian contingent will not be ready to move for several weeks. Certain "health precautions" had to be taken, presumably inoculations.

The actual cabinet order designating the Canadian force to be shipped has not yet been signed. Mr. St. Laurent said another cabinet meeting is scheduled for the afternoon.

He made clear last Monday that a special session of Parliament will be called within 10 days after the cabinet order is signed to get parliamentary approval of funds required for the troops.

Before the cabinet meeting Mr. St. Laurent said he thinks Canada is getting more credit than Russia for the cease-fire in Egypt.

PRIVATE MATTER

He was asked by a reporter whether his confidential letter to Sir Anthony Eden Monday had anything to do with the cease-fire called Tuesday night.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not divulge the contents of his private correspondence with the British prime minister.

The reporter suggested Russia should not get all the credit for the cease-fire by threatening Britain and France with attack.

"I think we are getting more credit than the Russians," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Canada Credited With 'Saving' Commonwealth

Assumes Leadership From U.K.
Says Manchester Guardian

LONDON (CP) — The Manchester Guardian says Canada has "frankly taken over" the moral leadership of the Commonwealth from Britain during the Middle East crisis.

It says she did so by proposing a United Nations force "without waiting for Britain to agree to it," at a time when British policies were coming "desperately close" to forfeiting the confidence of Commonwealth countries.

The Independent Liberal newspaper, which consistently opposed the government's Middle East policy, reviews the position of each Commonwealth country in turn, and says Britain can escape destroying the association only if "we are ready to sit down with our friends and talk with the candor, patience and humility which should always obtain between members of the Commonwealth, and which we have for a time mislaid."

Canada's efforts at mediation in the United Nations have been referred to briefly by other British newspapers during the crisis, usually with approval or non-committally.

The new leader of Britain's small Liberal party, Joseph Grimond, has several times referred in the House of Commons to Canada's "sensible" United Nations resolution, and Tuesday night said in a radio broadcast that Canada had in effect saved Britain's bacon.

There has also been some comment here, in the newspapers and among parliamentary observers, over the origin of the Canadian move for a UN police force. A question that has been asked is whether the idea belongs uniquely to External Affairs Minister Pearson, who formally proposed it in the General Assembly, or whether it had its genesis in an earlier speech by Prime Minister Eden.

Speaking last Thursday in the House of Commons, Eden said the first task was to separate the combatants and stabilize the position—if the UN "would then be willing to take over the physical task of maintaining peace in that area, nobody would be better pleased than ourselves."

200 Canadians Offer to Fight For Egyptians

OTTAWA (CP)—Hussein El Khatib, Egyptian ambassador to Canada, said Tuesday about 200 Canadians, including some nurses, have indicated readiness to fight for Egypt and he issued an appeal for more volunteers, arms or other aid.

He declined to give individual names, but said there had been volunteers from Toronto, London, Ont., Hamilton, Edmonton, Vancouver and Ottawa.

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—The South African cabinet decided Tuesday that the Union is "not involved in hostilities now taking place in the Suez area."

ROME (Reuters)—For the first time in eight years the Italian Socialist Party broke clearly with the Communists in parliament Tuesday night when its leader, Pietro Nenni, condemned the "Soviet repression" in Hungary.

Camera Reveals All In New Fire Alarm

A fire alarm box that takes your picture.

Yep, that's the latest gimmick to be used by fire departments in their war on that maladjusted section of society that gets its kicks by sending in false alarms.

City Fire Chief Frank Briers said it had been introduced in Oakland, Calif., and apparently has been successful.

The chief was commenting on a report from Lethbridge, Alta., that fire alarms in that city are going to "sound the gong at both ends."

The noise from a "growler" installed on the alarm, which sounds the minute the alarm is pulled, is designed to attract attention to the person turning in the alarm.

Chief Briers said that at the present time there is no need to install these costly gadgets in Victoria.

"We average only about four or five false alarms a month and our problem is not as bad as in many other cities," he said.

THIS AMAZING WORLD

Question Is: Did Beauty Queen Really Affect These Swimmers?

ILLFRACOMBE, England (CP)—The swimming club in this Devon resort is in a spot of hot water over the case of the unofficial official.

The executive of the Illfracombe Swimming Club has been ordered to appear before the Devon Amateur Swimming Association to explain why blonde model and beauty queen Anne West was appointed official starter at a recent regatta. Said Reg French, association secretary:

"There is an official starters' list and this young lady was not on it. It is a breach of regulations."

"Anyway, seeing a beauty queen could have affected the swimmers," he added, "They need to concentrate on the race, not the starter."

Miss West, 24, denied there was any distraction.

"The swimmers were little boys, aged 10."

PORTLAND, Eng. (Reuters)—Donald Derrick, 21, a reformatory prisoner, kept on running when the final whistle blew during a prisoners' soccer game Sunday. He was chased through the town of Dorchester but escaped, still garbed in his soccer uniform.

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Police officer Jim Lansford is in hot water at home—he accidentally boiled the family goldfish.

To supplement his pay as a desk sergeant, Lansford delivers newspapers. He rose as usual at 4:30 a.m. Monday to go out on his route. It was chilly. He lit the gas heater to warm the house for his wife and daughters. In the dark the sleepy sergeant did not notice the goldfish bowl had been placed atop the heater to ward off the night chill.

When he returned two hours the water was boiling merrily. The fish were done.

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Montrealers are fighting over ownership of an Irish sweepstake ticket worth $54,000.

Neither can collect a penny until the argument is settled. Mike Rodgers, a 28-year-old textile salesman, says he sold only a half-interest in his ticket to Mrs. Joan Mortimer, a fellow worker. She claims he sold her the whole thing.

Rodgers was listed as holder of the ticket on Halifax II, which came second in the Oct. 31 Cambridge Handicap sweepstake race.

Since lotteries are illegal in Quebec the case cannot be taken to court, but both sides are seeking legal advice.

Sadler's Wells Cancels Soviet Tour; U.K. Snubs Russians' Big Party

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Rising resentment against Russia's bloody repression of the Hungarian freedom revolt swept over Western Europe today — the 39th anniversary of Britain's famed Sadler's Wells ballet, which was to have visited the U.S.S.R. this month, cancelled the trip. It said in a telegram to Moscow:

"In view of public opinion in this country, which strongly condemns the repressed suppression by Soviet forces of Hungarian liberty and independence, the Royal Opera House has consulted Her Majesty's government and the Soviet relations committee of the British Council (a government-supported cultural body).

"It has been unanimously agreed that in the present circumstances the projected visit of the Sadler's Wells ballet to Moscow cannot take place."

The ballet's scenery, props and costumes are already in Moscow. RUSSIANS SNUBBED Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd snubbed the invitation of Soviet Ambassador Jakob Malik to attend a huge caviar-and-vodka reception planned for tonight at the Russian Embassy.

Such "revolutionary holiday" receptions are scheduled at Soviet embassies, legations and consulates all over the world — and from the way events were developing a lot of caviar is going to go to waste.

"The foreign secretary is definitely not going to the party," said a foreign office spokesman. "Recent events is the reason—and you can figure that out yourself."

The bar council of Britain's Law Society cancelled an invitation it had sent to Russian lawyers to visit Britain. Sir Hartley Shawcross, council president and cabinet member in the last Labor government, sent a letter to Moscow saying that "in view of events in Hungary" the visit could not take place.

James Matthews, official of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers, withdrew from a delegation which the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering workers proposes to send to Moscow because Russian trade unionists "are part and parcel of the state organization" that staged "the murder of the Hungarian nation."

The Sadler's Wells ballet, whose visit to Russia was to have been in response to the successful Bolshoi ballet stay in Britain last month, will take a big financial loss in calling off the trip.

Ottawa Boycotts Russ Caviar Party

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has decided to boycott tonight's Soviet Embassy vodka-and-caviar observance of the 39th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told reporters no one will officially represent Canada at the annual reception.

The Canadian government's decision not to attend appeared to be in line with similar decisions in much of the western world. A London dispatch gave the reason as rising resentment sweeping Western Europe against Russia's repression of the Hungarian freedom revolt.

In Ottawa, the annual reception by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin usually attracts many top diplomats.

Last year Mr. St. Laurent attended along with a large part of his cabinet.

Mr. St. Laurent described it as a "social affair." Whether any federal officials turned up at all would depend on individuals, he indicated. Invitations had been sent out to individuals and persons may attend as individuals.

It was learned the United States Embassy here also will not be officially represented. It was announced in Paris that no representatives of the United States, British or Canadian embassies would attend a reception to be given at the Soviet embassy there to mark the 39th anniversary of the October Revolution.

Britain Cuts Oil, Gas Sales by 10%

LONDON (AP)—Britain today ordered an immediate 10 per cent reduction in domestic oil and gasoline consumption to space out diminishing supplies from the turbulent Middle East.

Fuel Minister Aubrey Jones announced the decision in the House of Commons.

He warned a rigid rationing system would be introduced if there were undue delays to clear the Suez Canal and get damaged Middle East pipelines functioning again.

Britain now is making "considerable purchases" of oil in the United States with dollars, he said. Jones said oil companies have been instructed to reduce their deliveries to their customers by 10 per cent.

The reduction will apply to all garages and retail outlets of fuel oil. Police, fire, hospital and ambulance services will be exempt.

Jones said a cut of this size would not have a marked effect on British industrial production.

"Given the co-operation of all oil consumers it should be possible to achieve the savings of this order without any elaborate rationing machinery and without seriously affecting our economy," Jones said.

The Second Term

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER HAS won his second term not as a party leader but as a man. His personal legend has become the dominant fact in the practical politics of the nation.

The strength of the President and the relative weakness of the Republican Party have long been clear but yesterday they were confirmed by the detailed arithmetic of the ballot box. Mr. Eisenhower wins an overwhelming victory while his party, at this writing, with the election counting incomplete, seems to hold a minority in both houses of the Congress. Even their leader's broad coat tails were unable to carry the Republicans into control of the legislature.

Thus for the first time in more than a hundred years a victorious President immediately faces an opposition Congress. But that division, unthinkable under the British system, is not nearly so serious, or difficult for the President, as it looks on paper.

For two years Mr. Eisenhower has worked with a Democratic Congress and received from it stronger support, on most vital issues, than he received from its Republican predecessor. The massive prestige of the President and the unquestionable mandate he has received from the people should assure continued co-operation between executive and legislature.

More than any President of this century, except, perhaps, Franklin Roosevelt, Mr. Eisenhower represents the will of the nation and that will must be enforced.

As our neighbors rejoice at an election which left no doubt of their sentiments, foreigners will not forget that the voters have interrupted, if they have not ended, the political career of a great American.

Mr. Adlai Stevenson has brought to politics a sense of history, a brilliance of mind and a philosophy of government unequalled in modern times except in the case of Woodrow Wilson. Under the American system this man, whom millions of Americans supported for the presidency, is not leader of the opposition as he would be under the British system. His voice will not be heard in the Congress. He is only a private citizen with nothing but a dwindling moral influence on events. He will not run again for the presidency but foreigners may be permitted to hope that he may offer himself later on for service in government where his unique talents would be useful.

At all events Mr. Stevenson has the satisfaction of knowing on the morrow of the election that he could certainly have beaten any Republican except Mr. Eisenhower and that no possible candidate could hope to beat the most popular President in history, the average American will large, the folk image of the nation.

The outside world, little concerned with the partisan politics of the United States, is asking itself today what the President's victory will mean to world affairs. In one sense it will mean little; in another, much.

Ostensibly there will be no change in the Republican control of the executive and the Democratic control of the legislature, and no basic change in over-all American policy. Beneath the surface deep changes are in flow and the election will accelerate them.

In domestic politics Mr. Eisenhower has been conducting, in the last four years, a patient, dogged and on the whole successful struggle to reform the Republican Party, to defeat the Old Guard and, by adopting most of the social policies of his Democratic predecessors, to grasp a middle, moderate position obviously representing the will of the people and fitting the contemporary context of history.

Four years ago the people did not know, if Mr. Eisenhower himself knew, the true nature of his program. Now they know and they have endorsed him and his program. That is the meaning of the election in domestic politics. Yesterday's verdict will vastly strengthen the President's hand in his determination to convert the Republican Party to the facts of the twentieth century.

In foreign affairs it is too simple to say that Mr. Eisenhower's policies will continue unchanged. For the truth—as demonstrated during the crisis of the last week—is that American foreign policy, largely devised by Mr. Dulles, is deeply shaken and must be quickly repaired.

One of the most hopeful by-products of the crisis is the American people's sudden realization that their Government, with the best of intentions, contributed as much as any government to a disaster which almost exploded into world war.

The President evidently understood that fact late, but not too late. Grappling with events at the eleventh hour and keeping his head while others were losing theirs, he emerged with a new stature as a man of peace who might make mistakes but whom all free men could trust.

If the crisis has actually passed, Mr. Eisenhower now has the time and the mandate to revise a foreign policy clearly inadequate and in some respects dangerous; to heal the divisions in the free world; to place American power fully behind the United Nations.

If he is not a man of genius his integrity, his will for peace, his ability to inspire trust in all men, equip him for the mighty tasks immediately ahead. His first term was only preface and preparation for the real test of his life. All Canadians will hope that his health will support him in that test.

Maintaining the Pedlar

WHEN SIR HUGH LINSTEAD, secretary of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, reached this province the other day he discussed narcotic addiction.

Without presuming to tell British Columbians or Canadians how to handle their particular problems, he described Britain's treatment of the addict. In the United Kingdom, he pointed out, there is no big social problem arising from narcotic addiction. His country treats the addict as a medical case, provides supervised drugs for him and virtually eliminates the pedlar, the man whose profits depend on pushing narcotics and recruiting more users.

British Columbia spokesmen opposed to this method of treatment argue that most criminal narcotic addicts were criminals first and addicts later. They suggest that making drugs easily available to the addicts in this category would not turn them from criminal ways. It would, they imply, merely make it easy for such people to get their supplies.

These are two sides of an old argument. The British Columbia case, however, falls down in one important respect. Canada's attack on the narcotic problem—severe penalties for those caught in possession and no legal access to drugs by addicts—does not eliminate the pedlar.

The other day a Vancouver news item reported the seizure of pure heroin and capsules worth $50,000 on the underworld market and the arrest of a man charged with trafficking in narcotics.

The incident underscores the point frequently made by Mr. E. E. Winch and others who have studied addiction and Canadian methods of trying to curb it. That point is simple: As long as the financial rewards for peddling narcotics are maintained at the high level established by the illicit market, some human ghouls will be found to reap them, no matter what penalty is imposed on those caught by police.

The United Kingdom method may not be the answer to British Columbia's problem. But it does seem to work in the United Kingdom. Patenting the Canadian attack on this social evil does not. If it did there would be no cases in which pedlars are caught with supplies valued at many thousands of dollars on the illegal market.

Here Comes the Pitch

AN ASSOCIATED PRESS PICTorial feature demonstrates a new technique in throwing the javelin.

According to the accompanying explanation, the contestant, "instead of just tossing the spear, carefully soaps his hand to make it slick, grasps the spear behind him, whirls three times while running forward and then slings it."

The new method, the AP story says, enabled Egil Danielsen of Norway to throw the spear 304 feet 1.88 inches on Oct. 19. The world record, it continues, is 274 feet 3 3/4 inches and the Olympic mark 242 feet 7 1/2 inches.

There is one drawback to the new style. Neither the hurler nor anyone else knows where the javelin is going.

This makes the spectators participants in a combination of "Denim-mine-mine" and Russian roulette. Or is it just another publicity gag to sell more television sets by emphasizing the danger of watching sport from the bleachers?

A Message on the Wire

IT was sometime during the last war that I saw a movie somewhere depicting the commencement of the bombing of London. It was a highly dramatized version, of course, in the Hollywood tradition. But one of the closing scenes was of the hero—a news correspondent—in the basement of a London building, tapping out a dispatch on a teletype while the foundations shook and brick dust fell around him. His message was to the effect that "the lights are going out all over Europe," as well they were. Some of them have never been re-lighted to this day.

There was nothing particularly memorable about the movie itself, but I could not help recalling the scene as I read the other day that Hungarian news correspondent in his office in Budapest, tapping out almost a similar message on the teletype circuit to Vienna as his world collapsed around him.

There was nothing particularly memorable about the movie itself, but I could not help recalling the scene as I read the other day that Hungarian news correspondent in his office in Budapest, tapping out almost a similar message on the teletype circuit to Vienna as his world collapsed around him.

Fateful Words

One of humanity's most moving documents was typed out over that circuit, written by a man who knew he no doubt would be dead within an hour or two.

He interrupted his sending from time to time to run to the window to fire a few shots at the approaching Russian troops.

Then he would resume: "We have no time to lose, we have no time to lose..." "Any news about help? Quickly, quickly..." "The people are charging the Russian tanks with bottles of gasoline..." "We shall die for Hungary and Europe..."

Soon the wire connection was broken. The unknown correspondent was left to his fate. The age-old tragedy of conquerors and conquered was played to its final grim scene as the twentieth century's version of the Goths swept in for the kill.

Bitter Knowledge

I have been around teletype machines a good deal in the last twenty years but I can't remember when I have seen hardened newsmen so bitter as they have been about the past week's news from Hungary.

It is bad enough to see a nation trampled on as it is struggling to free itself. That is heart-rending enough. But when the trampling is accompanied by hypocritical boasts of setting the people free, preserving democracy and saving lives, the spectacle turns the stomach of every decent-minded person.

A blood-soaked bear with a smirk is an ugly sight.

The tragedy of it all is that so little can be done. To try to help the Hungarians by force—which would be the only effective help—would precipitate the world into a war.

Instead of one country enduring a bloodbath, a dozen or more would be left smashed and filled with orphans and corpses. Indeed the whole world might suffer that fate, and the globe become unfit for further human habitation.

That is too high a price to pay for the rescue of Hungary, for in the end it would be no real rescue. It would mean death for all.

But a lot of people feel today as though they had seen a child being beaten with a club—and had walked by on the other side of the street.

We are left, then, with the very unsatisfying alternative of moving United Nations' resolutions against the Russians' brutality, and calling for an impartial investigation of conditions in the victimized country.

Minimum Reaction

As Lester Pearson said in his memorable speech to the United Nations last Sunday: "Perhaps at this moment we cannot do more than this, but we surely cannot do less."

The hope is that the yeast of freedom will continue to ferment in all these enslaved lands, as, surprisingly, it has for the last ten years.

In Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, East Germany, there is still an unrelenting resistance to all that Russia seeks to impose on the captive nations. It may be that in time that innate urge for liberty will again come to a head in Russia itself, as it did when the people overthrew the Czars but unfortunately replaced them with masters much worse.

Brief Glory

The Communist barrier then will crumble, and this stagnant backwater in the stream of man's destiny will be opened to the clear current of human progress.

The path of history is lined with the Hitlers, the Mussolinis, the Stalins, and their heirs, who flourish for a brief time, impose their wills on the millions, but soon are as dead as the most obscure of their political victims to die under the lash in some sweat-foul basement cell.

Sooner or later world society will have to devise some method of detecting these carriers of the disease of megalomania before it seizes them and drives them into the final madness. Some serum, some cure—even euthanasia—would save successive generations from the epidemics which have ravaged us during this century. Sooner or later this will have to be made United Nations project No. 1.

As Our Readers See It

Revelations

The dark storm clouds, which presently overhang the world of ours, have been casting revealing flashes of lightning in diverse directions.

A first flash revealed the hollowness of Russian, or rather of Communist, pretenses about freedom and a satisfactory life within the satellite states which surround Russia.

Another flash revealed Mr. Dulles as the man who, seemingly with the consent of his president, was giving constant diplomatic aid not to his supposed allies, but to the man who openly avowed he would destroy Israel, as soon as he had created suitable conditions for doing so. Suitable conditions included eliminating effective British and French influence within and with the Arab world—with aid of Mr. Shepilov and Dulles.

A third flash gave insight into the heart of Mr. Tito, who called the Hungarian revolutionists "bandits," as soon as it became clear that these fellows were anti-communist as well.

Still another flash reveals that only Australia and New Zealand firmly support Her Majesty's Government in Britain, while Canadian opinion seemingly lacks resolution. It is left to the Alsop brothers to call a spade a spade, regarding who really set this lamentable Middle Eastern crisis in motion.

A fifth flash lights up Hungary again and shows the price there is to pay when disunity and lack of foresight prevail in the councils of the western world.

Background flashes nearer home reveal that we are all going to be very hungry, once we are evacuated to Nainaimo and Courtenay (and assuming that Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle have meanwhile been H-bombed). I suppose it would look ridiculously alarmist, if someone were to establish emergency food depots in those areas now.

Halloween Vandalism

Your editorial "Keep After Them," Nov. 2, is to the point. It is next to unbelievable why the police in Victoria could not break up the rowdy gangs Pete Loudon describes on page 21, Nov. 1.

And it is not the city alone which suffered of hoodlumism. Here at Langford my mailbox was ripped from its post as were three other ones of my neighbors. Besides other wilful damage, I am quite sure that the same gang which stole last summer hundreds of pounds of fruit and damaged the trees, is guilty of this outrage. We can only hope that those gangsters in Victoria and here will be caught. They should be whipped in a public place for all to see, to the limit of their consciousness. Without an example such outrages won't be stopped.

Halloween Nightmare

We have weathered once more this annual nightmare called "Halloween."

Most of us have a more fitting name for it. After the usual "hold-up," trick or treat, you have spent badly-needed money to buy the usual candies, etc., around 9 o'clock you think that after shelling out to 30 or more customers that maybe you would relax for a breather.

Make the mistake of not being vigi-

REPORT FROM OTTAWA By VICTOR MACKIE

Sidelights on the Crisis

WORLD events move at such a fast pace sometimes that they can catch diplomats in awkward predicaments. Take the case of Canada's external affairs minister, Mike Pearson. The uprisings in the Soviet satellite states were a natural for comment by Mr. Pearson and the CBC seized the opportunity to ask him to go on its TV "Press Conference" program to answer newsmen's questions. Mr. Pearson readily agreed. But within 24 hours the Israeli invasion of Egypt had begun to be followed by the Franco-British intervention. Mr. Pearson found himself faced with a TV press conference in which the main subject obviously would be Canada's position in the light of Britain's military move in the Middle East.

Conferences

Reporters in the parliamentary press gallery wanted comment on the British move from Canada's No. 1 diplomat. But Mr. Pearson was far too busy a man to reply to individual reporter's queries. The suggestion was made by the gallery that he hold a press conference, with pointed reference to the fact that he was finding time to go on the CBC for a television press conference that evening. It was an awkward situation. The Middle Eastern mess was such that any diplomat would have preferred to fall back on the "No Comment" reply to questions. But Mr. Pearson agreed to meet the press and answer their questions to the best of his ability. This he did.

Sides

The press conference was an ordeal for Mr. Pearson. Reporters sought to ascertain which side, if any, Canada was lining up with in the split in the Anglo-American alliance. Newsmen pressed him to indicate whether Canada would side with the United States and the United Nations against the United Kingdom or vice versa. But the minister was against taking any sides publicly. He wanted to wait and see what the United Nations meeting would produce. He preferred to have all the facts at hand before sounding off—an example that Canadians generally might do well to follow at such periods when Canada's role as linchpin between the U.S. and U.K. produces stress and strain.

Statement

One statement that Mr. Pearson pronounced with obvious care was that the Canadian Government "regrets" that the United Kingdom and France had found it "necessary" to intervene in the Middle East and you find your garden fences smashed, rose arbors crushed, flower beds trampled. Usually the victims are elderly pensioners who are trying to live their last few years peacefully and have made the mistake of raising their families decently.

If you have "young uns" you are safe but if you are "old ones" well, you live in fear until the next day dawns.

Such conditions should not be. People should not have to live in fear of these hoodlums. Here in Sidney, where there is little or no police protection, old people are subjected to the terrorism of these teenagers who look upon Halloween as a night in which they can run amok.

After all, in these enlightened days, Halloween should be outlawed. It isn't needed any more. "Young Uns" today don't need the candies, etc. They have far too much and no respect whatsoever for their elders.

I feel sure that many others will agree with me: "outlaw Halloween."

Experiments on Dogs

In Nov. 1 issue of the Victoria Daily Times we read of an experiment which has been made by doctors at the Moscow Institute of Surgery.

The left hind leg of a dog was cut off and put into refrigeration for more than 24 hours, then put back on again with "the aid of sutures through blood vessels, muscles and skin and nails to hold the severed bone ends together."

Hope now brightens that such procedure can be extended to benefit humans. However, since "the systems of all warm-blooded animals are so individualistic that they will not tolerate the tissues of another animal unless the two are closely related," such experiments have hit a serious obstacle.

From this it would seem that while close doggie relatives would at least have three legs to limp around on after having donated the fourth dispensable limb, human close relatives would invariably be left with only one leg apiece. This is at best robbing Peter to pay Paul. Laboratory experiments on animals must be highly enlightening. Unfortunately they seem to prove little else than the morbid sadistic lengths to which the scientific mind will go, and the painful gullibility of the human mind which continues to believe in them.

LONDON—Strictly personal... My Port Elgin aunt has written me saying: "I very much enjoyed your novel, 'Follow a Shadow.' One criticism—I don't like that picture of you on the jacket."

By coincidence my mother also wrote to say she enjoyed the book, adding: "But if there is one criticism it is that picture of you on the back. I know you have been away from home for a long time, but not that long."

My editor wrote to say: "Life in England over the last couple of years certainly seems to have aged you. Please send up to-date pictures for use with column."

My news agent took one look at the dust jacket and said: "What is this, a picture of your father?"

All this is terribly unfair to my wife. It is her first published photograph and she was proud of it. She was hoping that when the second edition is printed she could bathe in the full glory of her achievement with a credit line—PHOTO: BETTY REYBURN.

Of course, at the time of the taking of the picture she was working under difficulties. That day I was watching a cricket Test Match at Lord's when the publishers phoned to say they were going to press with the dust jacket and needed a picture in a hurry.

I dashed home during the lunch interval, sat my wife down in the garden, focussed my camera on her and then changed places with her and got her to click the shutter. A local camera shop rushed through a print and off it went to the publisher that night.

Given more time, she could undoubtedly have done a better job. "You are not an easy subject, you know," she said. She knows that over the years photographs of me have ranged from "It's all right, I suppose," to "Ye gods!"

I recall that when I was in hospital after the Dieppe raid and an X-ray was taken of what is described on my identification papers as "two-inch diagonal scar on left buttock" she looked at the X-ray plate and said: "Best likeness you've ever had."

The only person who has derived any real pleasure out of that photo of me on the dust jacket is my sister. For her, it is poetic justice. In my youth when I was on a small weekly paper I got going with the office camera and took some shots for the women's page.

The editor being away, I took the opportunity of running a big picture of my sister and friends at the beach. But instead of being happy about this, she was furious. "You've made my legs look fat and awful," she wailed tearfully. There was a hectic brother-sister set-to but I had the last word with: "The camera never lies." Now, 20 years later, sweet revenge has come with her simple comment on that dust jacket picture—"The camera never lies."

All those remarks about that photo could have hurt my feelings but it is fortunate that I am completely devoid of personal vanity....

YOUR HEALTH

Tuberculosis Still a Problem

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Dr. James E. Perkins, managing director of the U.S. National Tuberculosis Association, recently stated that although of late there has been a marked decline in the death-rate from the disease, last year about 16,000 persons in the U.S. died from it. In most cases these persons could have been cured if they had only suspected or recognized their trouble in an early stage, and had then gone quickly to a physician and perhaps to a sanatorium.

Dr. Perkins estimates that today there are more than 1,200,000 tuberculous persons in the United States. Some 800,000 have their disease in an active state, and probably 250,000 are not getting any treatment or supervision. What is sad is that any tuberculous person who is living with people, and especially children, and is not very careful about spitting and coughing, is going to give the disease to a number of persons. If every person who has tuberculosis would only be extremely careful about the disposal of his sputum, the disease could die out in a few years.

I just came from Birmingham, Alabama, where I was the guest of the large and enthusiastic group of lay men and women who have been participating in the fight against tuberculosis. The people at the luncheon, at which I was one of the speakers, filled several of the ballrooms of a big hotel. It was most encouraging to see so many intelligent women working hard to help in this campaign. We doctors, working alone, cannot win it. Many of the fine women of Birmingham received awards because of their outstanding work in selling Christmas Seals.

AFRAID OF TRUTH

The other day I was talking to a woman who has to do with one of the big trucks in which persons can get an X-ray film made of their lungs, free. She said that the sad thing is that so many of the persons who suspect they have tuberculosis are so afraid of knowing the worst that they won't go near the truck. They don't want to know the truth. They would prefer to stay home and infect their children so that later these children will suffer terribly and perhaps die.

ERGOTAMINE
A fine woman, whose life recently has been made over by the use of ergotamine, a drug which stops terrible sick headaches, ask me why so many physicians will not permit their patients to use it. I have to answer that that is one of the medical puzzles of today. For some 35 years I have been prescribing ergotamine widely for the relief of migraine, and never have I seen it do any serious harm. In only half a dozen cases did it cause enough spasm in the blood vessels of the person's legs so that I had to ask him (or her) to stop its use. I have a number of patients who have been taking injections of ergotamine at least once a day every day for 10 years and longer, and as yet they haven't gotten into any trouble.

What confused physicians was the report of three cases in which the ergotamine did harm after it had been given in large doses several times a day for the relief of the terrible itching that comes with the jaundice of cancer of the liver. It must be remembered that the giving of a drug four or five times a day to a weakened man who is dying, is one thing, while the giving of a dose, perhaps twice a week, to a healthy young woman is another.

There is another thing that few of us physicians know and that is that dihydroergotamine, or DHE 45, when it relieves an attack of sick headache, can be taken without any fear—its action is so mild that, so far as I can learn, it has never done anyone any harm.

CARELESSNESS OF HEALTH

The other day I happened to meet an intelligent elderly man with a cancer growing near and toward his left eye. When I asked him if he knew what he had, he said, "Yes." For a year he had been fairly certain what it was. When I asked why he had just sat and watched it grow, he said he feared its removal might hurt a bit! When I told him that it could be removed painlessly after the injection under it of a little procaine, he said he did not like the idea of the prick of the needle! As I often say in this column, aren't some of us human beings funny? Here was a man threatened with the loss of his eye and his life, and he was doing nothing!

DRUGS THAT AFFECT THE BRAIN

Of late, the new type of psychiatrist who is studying what actually goes on in the brain is much interested in testing rare drugs that excite or depress the brain, or will produce—temporary—insanity. Recently, Dr. Howard D. Fabing, of Cincinnati, reported that a drug called butenone, extracted from a mushroom, will produce mental disturbances. Legend has it that 1,000 years ago, Viking warriors ate mushrooms before a battle in order to work themselves up into a frenzy.

Time Yet to Plant Bulbs for Spring

Most gardeners have finished the planting of spring flowering bulbs, but those with well drained soil containing sand can still add to their potential display.

Some of the lesser known bulbs are available locally each year for fall planting, yet few seem to experiment with them.

Ixia is seldom seen in gardens, yet is found in most bulb catalogs, and on many bulb counters. It may be planted outdoors now only if the soil is light in texture. The ideal kind is that which may be worked on even after heavy rains. Many districts have it.

The long wiry stems of blooms, somewhat resembling freesia, appear in late spring or early summer according to the weather. The colors are many, and include red, white, purple and buff.

Varieties of Tritonia crocata may be grown under the same conditions as Ixia. The flowers are also similar to freesia, and the colors follow the pastel tones, though orange is included.

If your soil is not suitable for growing these two interesting and lovely South African bulbs outdoors, and you still feel adventurous, try a dozen in pots indoors.

Six to a five-inch pot will make a nice showing.

Supply plenty of drainage material in the bottom of the pot, then fill with sifted compost and a little coarse sand added.

Allow the bulbs to root in a light place with a 45-50 deg. F. tempera-

ADLAI STEVENSON
"... radiance and glory in the darkness."

PERSONAL DEFEAT

Adlai Didn't Sell His Ideas

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson had some cards stacked against him from the start. But he didn't make the most of the cards he held.

Former President Truman said at the Democratic convention last August that Stevenson was no fighter. This was not quite correct. Stevenson fought as hard as he knew how. History may say the trouble was he really didn't know how.

This was a personal defeat for Stevenson, not for the Democratic party. He ran behind the party, as the close contest between Democrats and Republicans for control of Congress showed.

Perhaps another man, better able to get his ideas across, might have done better than Stevenson. Perhaps not.

Because of the peace and prosperity under President Eisenhower, the country felt no need for change. Stevenson's job was to show a change was needed. He didn't get that across to the voters.

MANY ISSUES THIN
Because people were content, the issues were thin. But they were thin for another reason, too. Stevenson and Eisenhower basically have the same views on domestic and foreign problems and their solutions.

This meant Stevenson had to strain to point up any differences. The strain showed. At times he seemed to be floundering to find an issue. For example: His proposals toward ending the draft and H-bomb tests.

Even though he had been through the 1952 campaign, Stevenson never learned how to get his ideas across. Most of the time he talked in generalities. But when he criticized the popular Eisenhower's performance he needed, to be convincing, to back up his charges with facts and figures. He had a tendency to ignore them.

Reporters who accompanied Stevenson said he was forever tuning down the speeches prepared for him by his writers. More than that, he had a knack for approaching problems obliquely instead of head-on.

For example: He said he wouldn't make Eisenhower's health an issue. But when he did, he couldn't seem to bring himself to talk of it forthrightly. He kept referring to it by asking if Vice-President Nixon would make a good president.

Stevenson was credited by some people with having a literary style. But Truman had a better style, political and literary. He was more vivid and understandable.

Mid-East Crisis Helped Ike, Says Stevenson

'People Wanted A Military Man'

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson took his second crushing defeat at the hands of Dwight Eisenhower with a smile on his face and a quip on his lips.

It wasn't that it didn't hurt—he frankly confessed his disappointment before a coast-to-coast television audience.

But, he told hundreds of disheartened Stevenson volunteers jammed into a big hotel ballroom here—and millions who watched on their TV sets—"our cause will ultimately prevail."

Would he try for the presidency again?
"I'm a candidate for bed," he responded lightly to the reporter's query.

SUPPORTERS MOURNFUL
His more formal note was sounded shortly after midnight when he left his hotel suite and walked across the street to his campaign headquarters to tell hundreds of mournful followers:

"To you who are disappointed tonight, let me confess that I am too. But we must not be disheartened, for there is radiance and glory in the darkness, could we but see, and to see, we have only to look."

A burst of applause welled up over the ballroom. Women wept openly. Men got out their handkerchiefs and blew their noses furiously.

Stevenson confided to reporters and friends after his concession Tuesday night that he couldn't have beaten Eisenhower anyway, especially after fighting began in the Middle East and the people became convinced that they had to keep a general in the White House.

MESSAGE TO IKE
The returns showed the defeat of Stevenson hours before he made his formal concession. Telegrams of consolation had been pouring into his suite ever since the Eisenhower trend started.

He sent a telegram himself, to Eisenhower:
"You have won not only the election, but also an expression of the great confidence of the American people. I send you my warm congratulations."

"Tonight we are not Republicans, and Democrats but Americans."

His comfort, he told his audience, is that the American people made their choice in a vigorous partisan contest, which he said is democracy's life blood.

He told his followers, "take heart—there are things more precious than political victory, there is the right to political contest."

Midnight Ovation For Ike, Mamie

Jubilant President Promises To Work for Peace, Prosperity

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, jubilant over a smashing re-election victory, says he will work with all his strength for "Americans here at home and for peace in the world."

A tumultuous ovation greeted Eisenhower as he appeared at a post-midnight victory rally a few minutes after his opponent, Adlai Stevenson, conceded defeat and sent Eisenhower "warm congratulations."

The 66-year-old president had scored a great triumph, in a career marked by triumph, by rolling up a bigger victory over Stevenson than he did in 1952.

His victory talk was made to a wildly cheering crowd of about 2,000 party faithful in an hotel ballroom here, and to a television and radio audience of millions throughout the continent.

EISENHOWER PLEDGE
He said he wanted to make a pledge, and then said:

"With whatever talents the good God has given me and with whatever strength there is in me, I will continue—and so will my associates—to do just one thing: to work for 168,000,000 Americans here at home and for peace in the world."

The president's pledge to continue working for a lasting world peace—the central theme of his campaign—served to underscore the precarious international picture.

When word of Stevenson's concession reached the crowd in the ballroom three floors below the president's suite, a joyous shout went up. A few minutes later Eisenhower and his party appeared.

CAMPAIGN SALUTE
Time and again he stepped forward on the stage to acknowledge applause and cheers. Time and again both arms went above his head, outstretched in his familiar campaign salute.

Eisenhower Takes Washington State

But Democrat Senator Magnuson Re-Elected in Patchwork Voting

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington voters cut sharply across party lines Tuesday to give President Eisenhower a margin mounting above 77,000 while re-electing Democratic Senator Warren G. Magnuson by more than twice that bulge.

The political patchwork continued down the ballot. The voters re-elected a Democratic congressman-at-large, crossed over to give leads to all six of the state's Republican congressmen, then switched to the Democratic slate for state offices.

Five of the Republican congressmen were assured of victory on the basis of today's unofficial count. The sixth, representative Hal Holmes of the southeastern Washington farming and atomic works district, had only a 1,600 lead over Democrat Frank Leroux, a Walla Walla merchant and wheat grower, out of a total of 95,000 counted.

NINE VOTES

Eisenhower had 452,336 to Stevenson's 375,181 in 3,631 of the state's 4,782 precincts. The state has nine electoral votes.

The president's lead was overshadowed by that of Democratic Senator Magnuson over Arthur B. Langlie, the three-term governor who entered the race at White House urging. Langlie was the keynoter of the Republican national convention.

Magnuson was close to 180,000 ahead at 497,432 to Langlie's 319,399.

Brooks Win Squeaker Over All-Japan Team

NAGOYA, Japan (UP) — Lanky Roger Craig settled down after a shaky start to pitch the trouble-ridden Brooklyn Dodgers to a tight 3-2 victory over the All-Japan team at the Chunichi Stadium today.

DEMOS WIN STATE OFFICES IN WASHINGTON

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Washington voters elected a complete slate of Democratic state officers Tuesday and named a new non-partisan superintendent of public instruction.

Albert D. Rosellini won the office of Governor to head the list of eight Democrats swept into top offices at Olympia. The Seattle attorney and state senator defeated Emmett T. Anderson, Tacoma printing executive and the state's retiring lieutenant-governor.

New superintendent of public instruction is Lloyd J. Andrews, young apple-grower and state senator from Spokane County.

'Right-to-Work' Proposal Rejected 2-1

Voters Uphold Union Shop

SEATTLE (AP)—Initiative 198, the "right-to-work" measure that would have banned the union shop in Washington state, was defeated 2 to 1 in Tuesday's general election.

The measure, which touched off one of the most extensive and expensive campaigns in the state, was one of three state-level propositions the voters rejected.

The measure would have made it illegal for an employer to require a worker to belong or not belong to a union to keep his job.

EX-REPUBLICAN MORSE ELECTED IN OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Senator Wayne Morse, a one-time Republican making his first election bid as a Democrat, triumphed over Douglas McKay.

President Eisenhower had a commanding lead over Adlai Stevenson for Oregon's six electoral votes. But Democrats were holding their own or threatening gains in other offices.

McKay, who quit as secretary of the interior to try to unseat Morse, trailed almost from the start.

President Eisenhower this morning had 242,586 to 190,120 for Stevenson.

Leading Welters Clash at Chicago

CHICAGO (UP) — Cuba's Isaac Logart and Detroit's Duke Harris, both ranked among the world's top 10 welterweights, clash tonight in a nationally-televised fight at the Chicago Stadium.

Logart, fourth ranked, wanted a win to prove that his loss to Gaspar Ortega in his last bout was a mistake.

Harris, who never had an amateur fight, wanted a victory to "make some of that top money."

UBC Eight Carries Our Brightest Hope for Olympic Medal

Lloyd Swindells, who will cover the Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia, exclusively for the Times, is well qualified as a track and field observer. Swindells, coach and manager of the Vancouver Olympic Club, coached the Canadian track and field team in last year's Pan-American games in Mexico. This year, he was among the nominees for the Olympic coaching berth. Here, in the first of a series of articles he will write for the Times, he discusses the chances of the Canadian team in the Olympics.

By LLOYD SWINDELLS

Canada's most heralded chance for a gold medal in the 1956 Olympic Games at Melbourne, Australia, will rest on the oars of the University of British Columbia rowing eight. In 1954 this crew won the British Empire and Commonwealth title, defeating a strong English crew. The following year the giant Russian crew lost to them at Henley.

The year 1956 may be the greatest. The crew has enormous desire to win an Olympic Gold Medal and coach Frank Read has had amazing success in pointing it toward this goal.

Since the Canadian Olympic trials, when his crew overwhelmed the eastern aspirants, Read has had his charges training morning and night with the Olympic title as their goal.

Even now they must be rated as underdogs to the formidable Yale crew of the USA, but an upset could be in keeping with their previous record.

Not to be forgotten, too, is the UBC world-record-breaking fours crew. This group of spares set the world agog at the Olympic trials and forced the Canadian Olympic Association to increase the size of the rowing team.

Here in Victoria Tommy Walker, the excellent Toronto swim coach, is putting a talented group of swimmers through their pre-Olympic paces.

Outstanding prospects are British champion sprinter Ginny Grant of Toronto, who gave Australia's Lorraine Crapp a terrific battle in the 110-yard freestyle in the 1954 BEG, and Helen Stewart, Vancouver, who recently bettered the world 100-yard freestyle record.

Double Pan American champions, Beth Whittall of Montreal and Lenore Fisher of Ocean Falls are also possible finalists in their specialties. The women's relay team, with Sara Barber, Brantford, and Gladys Priestly, Montreal, added, should be a strong contender.

Diver Irene MacDonald of Hamilton placed second in the U.S. Championships and may well be in the first three at Melbourne. All in all, the Australians are favored in the women's events.

Of the men, Bill Patrick, Calgary, BEG diving champion, has proved himself able to compete with the best, while George Park, Hamilton, second in the Pan American 100-metre freestyle, has improved tremendously.

Coach Fred Foot of Toronto has assembled a strong track and field team in Vancouver but it is unfortunate that track and field is the one sport above all others that is heavily emphasized by the United States, Russia and all European countries.

But, regardless of emphasis, the shining light on Canada's team could well be Terry Tobacco of Cumberland and the Victoria "Y" team. Terry, who has earned the nickname, "The Cumberland Rocket," surprised the entire world in the last Empire Games with his third place finish in the 440 and his great 46.6 anchor lap on Canada's mile relay team.

Since then, Bruce Humber's protege hasn't lost a race from the 100 to the 400 metres.

Provided his leg holds up, Terry could well be a finalist and a medal winner. His competition is stiff with world record holders Lou Jones and Jim Lea of the US favored to win.

Sprinters Stan Levenson and Jack Parrington, both of Toronto, have world class times and one of them may reach the finals.

The sprint relay team won the U.S. championships at Buffalo in 41.3 with Joe Foreman of Mimico and Dick Harding, Toronto, supporting Levenson and Parrington. Coach Foot expects a medal position from this aggregation.

Doug Kyle, 10,000 metres, has this year established seven new Canadian distance records from 3,000 to 10,000 metres.

The UBC geologist's task seems the toughest of the entire team in view of the great record of east European and British runners.

However, Doug quite likely will be in the first 10 and possibly the first six. On Sunday, he ran non-stop for over two hours. His training program is prodigious.

The 1,600-metre relay team of Doug Clement, Vancouver; Murray Cockburn, Toronto; Laird Sloan, Montreal, and Tobacco, will uphold Canada's tradition of placing a finalist in this event.

Alex Oakley, St. Johns, Newfoundland, is the U.S. 20,000-metre walking champion and may be a surprising dark horse.

The girls have a strong relay with Diane Matheson, Montreal; Eleanor Haslam, Saskatoon; Maureen Rever, Regina, and Dorothy Kozack, Calgary.

Carl Olsen, a noted United States coach, predicts great things for this group. At present they are concentrating on the unique "foot" style of baton passing.

Glamazon Jackie MacDonald, the Toronto shot put expert, and Vancouver high jumper Alice Whitty should reach the finals at Melbourne.

Under the guidance of coach Lance Hudson, the basketball squad is off to a good start with two victories in three meetings with Seattle Seahawks, the U.S. national champions.

Ron Webber, Vancouver Clover Leaf's coach, believes the basketballers will do well provided they can continue their good play on an "away" court and can attain the condition needed to play at top speed every day. If they can do this, the team should push the U.S., Russia and Brazil.

Trap shooting may once again give Canada a gold medal. Frank Opsal of Vancouver has an excellent competitive record and could duplicate the feat of George Genereux in 1952.

Weightlifting has been a strong point for Canada in international competition. Gerald Gratton, Montreal, is once again highly favored to win a medal. In 1952 he won a second-place silver medal, missing first place through a bad decision.

Canada should do well in proportion to population and if the U.S. and Russia were not entering teams, our athletes would show amazingly well.

One of the most colorful figures in the world of golf was Walter Hagen. Now, with the aid of Margaret Seaton Beck he has written his amazing life story. Because of world-wide popularity and the fact that he played in the city, the Times takes pleasure in presenting the Hagen biography.

CHAPTER 16

My start in the 1924 British Open was not sensational, for I took a 77 for the first round in the championship. But on the second I finished in 73 to stand three strokes back of the leader, Ernie Whitcombe, one of the three famous golfing brothers, and one stroke back of J. H. Taylor. MacDonald Smith and I were tied at 150. On my third round the next day I had a 74 and Ernie Whitcombe and I entered the final round on even terms.

There had certainly been a clearing of the decks from the close play of the previous day. Arthur Havers, the defending champion, who had beaten me by one shot in 1923, came to grief with his third round of 80. Abe Mitchell, playing with Arnaud Massy, was spraying his shots wildly and they both gave up on the fourteenth hole and straggled back to the locker room.

Mac Smith seemed a good bet to take the lead but his third round of 77 put him three shots back of me. On his final round he finished with a 77 giving him a 304 for a tie with Frank Ball for third. J. H. Taylor, the great warrior who had won five British Championships, soared to 79 on his third round, leaving him four shots behind me going to the final round. His last round of 79 gave him a total of 307.

I went into the final round in 41, two better than Whitcombe but way over what I'd hoped to shoot. At the twelfth hole Johnny Farrell, who had come over to play in the Open but didn't get the chance because a wasp stung him on the thumb, came out to tell me that Ernie had finished his round and turned in a 301.

"What are you doing?" Johnny asked. "I've got to finish in par to tie him," I said.

I'd already played my second shot and my third was a difficult niblick shot just over the trap hole was hidden behind the trap.

"I'm going to take a chance right here," I told Johnny. "I've got to cut this just right. If it stops right, I can hole it for a 4." It did.

At the 18th I was confident I had victory in the palm of my hand, for here was a short par-4 hole with the wind at my back. I got a long tee shot some 300 yards, leaving me a short seven iron shot for my second. Again a series of traps crossed the front of the green. However, they didn't seem to be too troublesome considering the shortness of the shot I had to make.

I played my second shot too boldly and went past the flag to the back edge of the green. Here I was on this fast green . . . on the back edge at that . . . and I needed to get down in two. I putted down, sloping away, and left my self five feet short. Had I hit it a tiny bit harder I would have rolled almost to the hole. But a semicircular ridge held my ball and left me with a most difficult putt.

With such a fast green I knew my stroke must be delicate. I looked over both sides of the hole. There was a slim chance of a slight roll as it went down a little incline toward the hole. I studied it carefully once more. I decided there was a double roll down the first two feet of the putt to the right, a slight roll to the left the last two feet. I stood and set myself with one thing uppermost in mind. I must hit the ball delicately. And in a situation like this delicacy is difficult due to the extreme nervous tension one is under. But then I had a second thought which helped greatly in my executing the shot correctly and in not being overanxious to see where the ball was going. Should I miss, I'd only need to stay over another day to beat Whitcombe in the play-off of the British championship. If I holed, I became the British Open champion.

While 10,000 people held their breath, I stroked the ball . . . gently but firmly; it righted the last turn, straightened out and headed for home! I threw my putter into the air and never saw the ball or the putter again. But I sure saw that British Open trophy!

My wife rushed up and kissed me. London bobbies in their white helmets quickly surrounded us to give what protection they could from the thousands of gallery fans seeking to shake my hand and roaring congratulations into my ears. Some of them lifted Mrs. Hagen and me to their shoulders and carried us off the green.

The committee asked Mrs. Hagen and me to come into the club house for a champagne toast. She was the first woman ever to cross the threshold of the Royal Liverpool links club house. I suggested that MacDonald Smith, who had finished in a tie for third, come along with us and they graciously included him. Mac, on the wagon but sportsmanlike, touched his lips to the rim of the champagne glass but did not drink. I received another great ovation from the gallery when we mounted the platform to receive the trophy and other prizes.

McWHINNEY HOSPITALIZED SIX WEEKS

WINNIPEG, Man. (BUP)—Winnipeg Blue Bomber half-back Glenn McWhinney was "resting comfortably" in a hospital today with a broken neck.

McWhinney was injured in the second half of Monday night's game against the Saskatchewan Roughriders. It was thought earlier that he had suffered a spinal concussion, but doctors said yesterday that a vertebrae had been dislocated and McWhinney was expected to be in hospital for six weeks.

Redskins Heap Sharp; Want Drakes' Scalps

When the Fort William Redskins trot out onto the buoyant turf of Athletic Park Saturday to meet the revenge-seeking Oak Bay Drakes in the Western Canada intermediate football final, they are expected to be better than the club that chilled the Drakes, 38-0, on a blizzard-swept gridiron at Fort William last November.

Leading the club's awesome offensive unit is Murray McKenzie, a 22-year-old halfback whose contribution to the cause in last year's final was the kicking of three singles. Besides his kicking, Murray this year won the league's most valuable player award and the scoring championship with 45 points. His rushing average is a phenomenal 11.1 yards a carry.

Backing McKenzie up will be Roy Kadolph, league-leading ground galger this season and extremely fast off the mark; Mills Patton, top pass receiver and blocker, and hard-plunging Bruno Grobelny, who scored five touchdowns rushing during league play.

FINE PASSER

Directing the operations will be quarterback Dick Seagris. After three years of grooming, Seagris is said to be the best passer the Redskins have ever had, throwing for 11 touchdowns this season.

He was injured early in the league playoffs, but recovered to lead the club to its 24-6 win over Winnipeg Rams in the western semifinal. Seagris' legs are the big question mark and because of this he will probably split signal-calling duties with Al Davey, a slick ball-handler who saw heavy duty during playoffs.

Catching passes will be all-star end Pete Comisso, 6' 3", and George Grant, 6' 4", who is also the club's placement and convert kicker.

And up front a line averaging over six feet in height and 207 pounds in weight will be starting down the collective throats of the Drakes both on offence and defence.

All in all, the Redskins went through league play undefeated, placing nine members on the league all-star team en route, and lost just one game on the playoff trail leading to Victoria.

EARN'S RAISE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Herm Wehmeler, strapping righthanded pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, Tuesday won a salary boost for 1957 and became the first Redbird to sign a new contract.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—Hans Stutz, German-born, outpointed Dominican Martinez, Uruguay (30), light-heavyweights.

NEITHER WAY EASY WAY FOR BIG FOUR CONVERTS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Big Four football league is going back to the old way of kicking converts—from the 10-yard line into the end zone—for league playoffs.

Big Four President James P. McCaffrey said, Tuesday the change is because there is too much at stake in the playoffs.

"There have been reports of the crowds in the end zones throwing things at the man trying the convert," he said.

Midway in the season Big Four clubs agreed to kick converts from 10 yards behind the goal line towards the playing area because fans in end zone bleachers gathered in kicked footballs and refused to give them up. Footballs cost more than $20 each.

D & D WINS THRILLER

Victory Eludes Morrison's Again

Morrison's are probably wondering today when the breaks are going to start coming their way in the city senior "B" men's basketball league.

Playing their first season in the six-team circuit, Morrison's dropped their opening game by a single point, 56-55 to Farmer Construction. Thursday night at the new Victoria High School gymnasium, they went into overtime before losing a 62-60 thriller to Dickinson & Dunn.

In the other game played Thursday, Farmers took over first place by racking up their second successive triumph, a 60-41 win over Rose Fuel.

BAKER HIGH MAN

Ruining Morrison's hopes for their first victory was veteran Norm Baker, who tossed in 29 points for the defending champions. Baker pushed in a rebound with 10 seconds remaining to send the tussle in extra time, then evened the count after Morrison's had taken the lead in the extra session to set the stage for Bill Bamford's game-winning basket.

Morrison's appeared on their way to a win as they took a 32-23 lead at half time and were in front at 44-32 at one stage of the final quarter.

But the Tiremen finished with a flurry, pulling within a single point with 60 seconds left. Jake Jacobsen, who paced the losers with 27 points, cashed a free throw to make it 58-56 before Baker sent the contest into overtime.

No Action Expected For Warrior Tactics

Leader Receives No Report

President Al Leader of the Western Hockey League is not contemplating any concrete action against the Winnipeg Warriors for their conduct during a 9-2 loss to Victoria Cougars Monday.

Leader, however, has received an apology from Winnipeg president J. D. Perrin and has been assured that there will be no repetition of the Warriors' deliberate icing and faint-hearted tactics of the third period Monday night.

As for league action, Leader told the Times today that referee Vern Buffey did not consider the team's actions flagrant enough to warrant a report, tying Leader's hands in the matter.

"Unfortunately, I did not see the game," he said today, "and unless the referee makes a report on any incident I cannot take any steps to reprimand a club."

NO COVERING RULE

"There is no league rule whereby a team can be fined for repeatedly icing the puck in a game, but if Winnipeg or any other team insist on doing this throughout the season, then I shall certainly do something about it."

Perrin assured me personally, however, that he has severely reprimanded his coach (Al Pike) and players for their exhibition and promised that it will never happen again."

Leader said that he would be setting a precedent if action was taken for the icing practices of a team during a given game, because "this type of kitty-bar-the-door hockey has become so common in past years."

Leader also said that Perrin told him that coach Pike of the Warriors blamed the Cougars for starting the icing tactics early in the third period when they had built up a 7-2 lead, and that the Warriors were just "retaliating."

Winnipeg, adding insult to the injury imposed upon them by the Cougars, began icing the puck at every chance during the final five minutes of Monday's contest, even skating back over the centre ice line before shooting the puck into the Victoria zone in order to draw a whistle.

According to Leader, the first report he had of the exhibition was through the Victoria newspapers, and "although from all reports the display was disgraceful" could not take official action.

However, he told the Times that he was meeting with referee Vern Buffey today and would discuss the situation further with him.

Royals Complete Winnipeg's Woes

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Winnipeg Warriors winned under their fourth straight defeat here Tuesday night as they ended a four-game swing through the Western Hockey League's coast division.

New Westminster Royals dealt the Warriors the blow, eking out a 7-6 win after Winnipeg had snatched one-goal leads twice during the third period.

Ollie Dorohoy triggered the New Westminster win at 18:18, less than two minutes after Arnie Schmutz had scored the equalizer.

National League veteran Bill Mosienko sparked Warriors' third period rally when he fired his third goal and moved his team abreast of the Royals. Seconds later, the Warriors led 5-4 after Pat Hannigan hit the Royals' net.

The see-saw scoring continued as Royals' Arlo Goodwin and Winnipeg forward Gord Stratton fired goals in rapid succession. Then Schmutz started the Warriors' downfall.

The victory leaves New Westminster in second place in coast division standings, three points behind Seattle. In the Prairie division, the Warriors trail second-place Edmonton by three points.

Tonight's WHL schedule sends the Royals to Seattle and the Calgary Stampeders to Brandon.

Car Driver Fined In Motorcycle Collision Case

A car-motorcycle collision on the Island Highway almost four months ago resulted in the conviction in Colwood RCMP court Tuesday of Robert Brown Simm, 340 Elyford, on a charge of careless driving.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

Simm was identified by police as driver of a car which brushed a motorcycle driven by Gerald Dean Carter of Peco, Calif., near the Spencer Road intersection.

Carter, on a motorcycle holiday with his brother and cousin at the time, suffered a broken leg when he fell from his bike and has been confined in St. Joseph's Hospital since the accident.

Joint Civic Hall Planning Stops Appeal to People Recommended

Planning for a joint municipal hall was suspended Tuesday by Saanich and Victoria.

A two-council committee, disbanded after three months' negotiations, has recommended both municipalities ask authority of the voters for a two-municipality headquarters before any further steps are taken.

If councils agree, a referendum would be held at the time of December elections.

Suggested wording for the referendum is: "Are you in favor of negotiations being continued relative to a joint Victoria-Saanich municipal hall and the pooling of selective services?"

During the past few months, with the aid of Capital Region Planning Board, the committee had narrowed logical sites for a joint hall to Topaz Park and the present site of the Protestant Orphanage, at Cook and Hillside.

Saanich councillor Leslie Passmore told the Tuesday meeting he felt his municipality had more pressing problems such as sewers, increased share of district school costs and local improvements.

"In Saanich we are in a position where we can double the existing hall without borrowing."

"I can't see even 25 per cent of the Saanich voters supporting a $1,000,000 hall to be built for the city."

Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash defended the planning.

"Are we going to look to the future? Are we going to build concrete barriers around each municipality? No matter who is on the council, in the future there is going to be amalgamation. The taxpayers are very much concerned if we can cut administrative costs through amalgamation. We owe it to them to at least consider the proposal."

Gradually the meeting moved from discussion of a joint hall to a discussion of amalgamation.

The suggestion that a referendum should be held was made by Reeve Ash.

Pair Charged After Bingo Raid Received $35,835 Says Witness

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER — Two of 19 persons charged in the bingo raid on the Cordial Club last August received $35,835 over a period of 31 months, a witness said Tuesday.

This evidence was given by chartered accountant Roy C. Bell, who examined accounts of the club and Dolmar Estates Ltd.

He testified that the $35,835 was paid to Albert and Gordon Town, co-shareholders of Dolmar Estates, for 1954, 1955 and seven months of 1956.

The accountant also testified that the account showed sale of "A and B" bingo cards netted the Cordial Club $533,864 from March, 1953, to July, 1956, and a total of $409,864 was paid out in prizes.

The Towns, 17 other persons and three companies are charged with keeping a common gaming house as the result of a raid made by city police on the Cordial Club Aug. 17.

Mr. Bell said that after examining the books, there were "no benefits for members of the Cordial Club."

The accountant said he found Albert Town received a salary of $4,675 and a $2,000 "additional drawing" in 1954. In the same year, Gordon Town received a salary of $4,000.

In 1955, said the witness, Albert Town received a salary of $5,200 and a $2,850 "additional drawing" and Gordon Town received a salary of $4,500.

Up to July 31, 1956, Albert Town had received a salary of $3,000 and an "additional drawing" of $3,200. Meanwhile, Gordon Town had received a salary of $6,400.

Mr. Bell said that in the 31-month period, Albert Town received a total of $20,925, and Gordon Town, $14,900.

CRUSHED TO DEATH
FERNIE — Herman Hula, a 29-year-old coal miner, was crushed to death by a rock fall at the Elk River Collieries here.

Nelson McIntosh, working with Hula, escaped with minor abrasions.

Hula, an employee of the Crownstest Pass Coal Co. for 3½ months, is survived by his widow and two children.

HOTELMAN DIES
VANCOUVER — Funeral services will be held Thursday for E. G. Baynes, 86, a B.C. hotel operator for 40 years.

Mr. Baynes came to Canada from England in 1889 and built the Grosvenor Hotel here in 1915.

WILL UPHOLD
VANCOUVER — The last will of Arthur Stanley Stubbs, retired Gibson's farmer who died Feb. 6, has been upheld in Supreme Court, despite action by his sons to break the will.

The will was made five days before his death.

About three-fourths of the $15,000 estate goes to his widow, Dorothy May Stubbs. Two sons, Charles Stanley and George Ernest, receive about one-eighth each.

The sons invoked the testators' family maintenance act to seek a larger share of the estate.

EXTENSION REFUSED
VANCOUVER — Extension of dancing hours from 2 to 3 a.m. in cabarets was refused Tuesday by city council.

Council agreed with Police Chief George Archer that any extension of hours would increase trouble and add to police problems.

Longer hours were asked by five Chinatown cabarets, which claimed present regulations prohibiting dancing after 2 a.m. worked a hardship on them.

COSTLY MISTAKE
VANCOUVER — A bucket of oil mistaken for water created a million dollar fire scare in downtown Vancouver Tuesday.

The oil sent dense smoke billowing from the partially completed 21-story B.C. Electric building after a workman used it to douse burning insulation.

Firemen racing to the scene said the building looked "as though it were going to burn to the ground."

The damage extended from the ninth to the 11th floor in the concrete and glass structure.

MAN PRESUMED DEAD
VANCOUVER — A man who disappeared from Prince Rupert eight years ago while working there with an undertaking firm was presumed Tuesday by Mr. Justice A. E. Lord to be dead.

Lyle Munn obtained the order for Mrs. Doris Chipman of Seattle. Her petition stated that her brother, James Oliver McInnis, is believed to have fallen into the water from or near Zennaro Rapids Bridge, between Barrett and Point Edward, on Nov. 12, 1948. His body was never found.

DEATH APPEAL HEARING
VANCOUVER — The application of Joe Gordon for leave to appeal his death conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada is slated for Nov. 14.

Gordon is under sentence to be hanged Nov. 20 for the slaying of Constable Gordon Sinclair in December, 1953.

His counsel, Larry Hill, is endeavoring to have the conviction reviewed by the highest court in Canada.

Convicted with Gordon was James Carey, who later was granted a new trial by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

ANOTHER MYSTERY GUEST

$9,000 Bingo Prize Offered by Kinsmen

The only giant bingo game in Canada still operating successfully goes into its sixth session with $9,000 worth of prizes for 400 winners Dec. 17 in Memorial Arena.

Victoria Kinsmen Club is the last big bingo operator to stage contests before full houses and at a profit, chairman Jack Phillips said.

About $1,000 will be spent on bringing a mystery guest from some part of the world to appear at the bingo session, expense-free.

In this connection a contest among bingo ticket-buyers will provide the panel from which judges select the guest. An entry form will appear in the Saturday Times.

Other forms are available at Hudson's Bay Co. and Eaton's stores, where tickets will be on sale Nov. 15-Dec. 1.

Grand bingo prize will be a $3,100, 1957 Ford equipped with heater, radio, white walls and two-tone paint job.

A total 14 games will be played for about 200 turkeys, four portable TV sets and mixers. Remaining 100 turkeys, weighing between 15 and 20 pounds, will go for special prizes.

Consolation for the car bingo will be a $50 set of silver flatware.

"You don't have to be lucky at bingo to win a prize," said Mr. Phillips, sure the 7,800 available arena seats will be packed.

Special guests will be children from B.C. Protestant Orphanage, and for the comfort of young and old players arena ice will be removed and heating turned on.

Of net profits realized from the five previous games and next month's game, 80 per cent will be applied to eight items listed as special Kinsmen charities. The remaining 20 per cent goes to small projects.

A full statement of finances will be publicized soon.

Zucco Case in Court

VANCOUVER — The Workmen's Compensation Board has applied to have the silicosis pension suit of Jack Zucco struck out.

Mr. Zucco started action in Supreme Court in September after he was refused a pension as a miner totally disabled by silicosis.

The board, last March, denied he was suffering from silicosis and disallowed an appeal, despite certification by Dr. Arne K. Mathisen that Zucco is wholly disabled by silicosis.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord reserved decision in his chambers on the board's contention that Zucco should have applied by petition of right for a flat to sue the government on the ground the board is an agent of the

G.E. MAKES A BULB FOR EVERY LIGHTING FIXTURE

by PEGGY LIDSTONE Home Lighting Specialist

Do you use lighting in your home merely to chase away the shadows? Home lighting should be given a much more important role than that! Dramatically and psychologically, light and colour are the two strongest influences in home decoration. They can induce gaiety... add zest to your work... bring new charm to your way of living. You set your own stage, lighting-wise, during the hours when your home is most used. Carefully planned lighting can influence and intensify the pleasant atmosphere of your home. Kitchen chores become less tedious when your kitchen's working areas are individually lighted. Lamps should be shielded from the eyes, and should reflect onto working surfaces. Bedrooms, when well lighted, are an aid to better grooming. Adequate lighting will help you see into bureau and dresser drawers... make room-cleaning easier. Dining areas should have fairly strong overhead lighting to bring dramatic sparkle to the table, plus soft surrounding light from a wall bracket or valance. Place the centre fixture directly over the table... have the wall bracket six feet above the floor on the nearest wall. Television should never be viewed in a darkened room. A general lighting will save the eyestrain caused by strong contrast between the screen and the surrounding area. Use floor and table lamps, but be sure the shades do not appear brighter than the screen. Lighted valances and torchiers may also be used.

For further lighting tips, write to: Peggy Lidstone, c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., 163 Dufferin Street, Toronto.

FOUR OF A KIND

Four generations of native Victorians are pictured above. From left, they are Mrs. Annie Bent, 474 Burnside, who celebrated her 80th birthday last month; on her knee, her great-granddaughter, Carolyn Grace Bent, five months old; her grandson, E. C. Bent, and her son, E. J. Bent.—(Times photo.)

Bent Family's History Tells City Life Story

By DINAH KERR

History of Victoria—since horse and buggy days of 1880 is also the history of four generations of the Bent family—all Victoria-born.

Mrs. Annie Bent was born here in 1876, in a little house in Esquimalt—then just a village.

She remembers when Victoria was a city of board sidewalks and rough main streets—when the Half-Way House was literally half-way to Esquimalt.

On rainy days, Victorians had to shelter under the cover of store fronts to escape knee-deep mud on the "main streets"—Douglas and Government.

Mrs. Bent moved to the city when she reached school age and attended Central School on Yates Street, now the site of the modern Central Junior High School.

Her son, E. J. Bent, grandson, E. C. Bent, and great-granddaughter, Carolyn Grace, five months, also were born in Victoria and live here now.

Still robust and active, Mrs. Bent spends two or three days a week visiting and caring for other members of her immediate family.

The rest of her time is devoted to crocheting. Her latest project is a large runner patterned with the "Last Supper," which she began at the age of 75.

ABDUL THE SQUAWKER HAS REASON TO SQUAWK

Crane Faces Lonely Birthday

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Abdul the Squawker, the oldest and only Oriental crane in captivity in Canada, will be celebrating his 30th birthday at Beacon Hill Park next year.

Park officials said today plans are underway to observe the event to take place on April 7.

A special meal will be prepared for Abdul, they said, and the public will be invited to see him dine in state.

Abdul was seven years old when the Indian Maharajah of Bikaner presented Abdul, together with four "damo-elle" cranes, to Beacon Hill Park in 1934. The presentation was made through the late Dr. C. C. French, who lived for a while in India.

A Mohammedan from the central plains of India, Abdul for a time lived happily as head of his harem of four cranes at the park. But as time went by, one by one of his mates died from old age.

Today Abdul is alone—very much alone—and the years are beginning to wear on him.

No kindly maharajah has offered to replace his harem. His only companion is a proud peahen, who won't have anything to do with him. She apparently hates him from the south of India.

In addition, his simple pleasures have been shorn away from him. For instance, in his younger days Abdul and his wives often used to fly over their pen and play hide and seek with park officials. But city council put an end to that game by ordering the wings of the birds closely clipped as soon as the moulting season was over.

Every spring Abdul still stages his weird mating dance—a dance which attracts attention of park visitors. With wings outspread, the crane circles and cranes in half-moon but without a partner, now.

BETWEEN TIMES

MONTE ROBERTS

Well, for thinking out loud...

Among the many jobs I would not like to have is the job of taking the lids off manhole covers in the middle of downtown streets. The man who braves the onrush of traffic, clutching his little red flag like a glistering shield, has courage far and above the call of duty... especially on Government Street at 8:30 a.m. ... I have been told on good authority there is a by-law against double parking in this town ... but you'd never know it from casual observation ... it has the same effect as the by-law against setting off fireworks. ... I see where the joint municipal hall committee has stopped talking about the joint ... this is a good thing ... surely we can afford something better than a joint for our city fathers ... as they said in College Humor circa 1930, don't call this dump a joint. ...

Old generals never die ... they either get elected president or write articles for magazines ... if you want to start a good argument, suggest to a United States American that the parliamentary system is more democratic and efficient than the way the U.S. elects its representatives ... or take the opposite view with any Commonwealth citizen. ... I am bound to confess, TV is here to stay ... this statement being based on last night's election coverage ... but I do wish the wonder boys of TV would realize it's a discrediting tendency among spectators at various sporting events to expect to get their money's worth ... what do they want the professional athletes to do, earn their money or something? ...

It appears to have taken Stevenson about four hours to compose his speech of non-victory ... it was worth every second of it ... the morning paper had a headline "they didn't nix Dick" ... should have been "voters fail to not elect Dick" ... if we are going to be negative, let us be really negative. ...

There has been considerable criticism of the Winnipeg Warriors for icing the puck the other night ... but after all, they had to use the ice for something ... seems to me there's a distressing tendency among spectators at various sporting events to expect to get their money's worth ... what do they want the professional athletes to do, earn their money or something? ...

Excuse me, I must dash out and buy a poppy to honor veterans of former wars before there are veterans of another war to honor. ...

Victoria Politicians Hail Eisenhower Victory

Political leaders here were generally pleased today with the Eisenhower presidential victory Tuesday in the United States.

Said Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich: "I feel his re-election was to be expected. It distinctly shows that the nation and to a large extent, the world, has confidence in his administration. But I'd be happier if there was a stronger vice-president (than Richard Nixon)."

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said "first of all his re-election was to be expected. Looking at it from an economic point of view we here are still likely to have a tight money policy. We are naturally interested in trade and the Republican tight money policy may be detrimental to that trade. Nonetheless we wish them well."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said, "I liked Ike too."

Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, F. A. "Ardie" Gibbs said, "there is no doubt Mr. Eisenhower is the most popular man. His re-election is the result of the moderate and careful way he has handled his country's affairs. But his election is not a criterion on the manner his government has handled activities."

Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory said, "I'm glad it's over so the United States can take an intelligent interest in world affairs."

Mayor Percy Scurrell said, "I'm very pleased. I think he is the right man for the job at this particular period because of his experience and ability at reconciling differences between men and nations."

The man-in-the-street went along with the thinking of the political leaders.

Said Ron Barker, 2756 Foul Bay: "I'm very pleased with Mr. Eisenhower's election. Nobody changes horses in midstream and it would have been unwise to have a new president in this period of emergency."

"I'm pleased that he's back," said Mrs. H. I. Stitt, 1850 Allenby, "as I think he's done a fairly good job."

Said Mrs. A. J. Chapman, 723 University, "The right man went in."

One of the few people who favored Adlai Stevenson was Mrs. B. J. Thompson, 1573 Clawthorpe. She said, "I somehow hoped Stevenson would get in as there was room for a change."

Firework Sale, Illegal Use, Bring Two Fines

Halloween Sequel In Court Today

Halloween hi-jinks had a sequel in city police court today.

Two persons were convicted under city by-laws dealing with sale and use of fireworks.

A seldom-enforced streets and traffic by-law making it illegal to throw firecrackers on city streets was brought against Clarence Davis, 955 Joan Crescent.

Davis was accused of throwing firecrackers in city-maintained rubbish receptacles on Yates Street, Oct. 28.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said Davis refused to answer a police constable who attempted to question him on his actions.

Davis pleaded guilty through counsel and was fined $15 by Magistrate Hall.

EARLY SALE

First conviction under another by-law banning sale of fireworks until three days before Halloween was recorded against Lee Poi Jean, proprietor of the J and J Market, Beckley and Oswego.

Magistrate Hall said he would impose a $10 fine because it was the first time the charge had come before him, but added, "I don't want this to be considered standard."

Counsel J. Ronald Grant said the fireworks were sold Oct. 25 by Lee's wife, who does not speak English and did not understand she was violating the law.

Sands Named Deputy Rail Minister

W. H. (Bill) Sands, deputy minister of labor in the B.C. government, today took on the additional job of deputy minister of railways.

He succeeds J. S. Broadbent, who resigned to become general manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Mr. Sands has been deputy labor minister since August, 1952.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said integration of the two departments—labor and railways—would be "further strengthened" by Mr. Sands' new appointment.

"The department of railways is primarily concerned with a safety program affecting employees in industrial transportation," Mr. Wicks said. "It is therefore sensible and logical that the safety work of the two departments should be co-ordinated."

"It will make the safety programs of both departments more efficient and promote their development."

Mr. Sands is an old railroad. From 1932 to 1945 he worked in the railway yards of Canadian Pacific and Canadian National in the Okanagan. From 1945 to 1952 he was a B.C. representative of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, now the Canadian Congress of Labor.

He joined the B.C. government as deputy labor minister soon after the Social Credit government was elected in 1952. Mr. Sands is 42.

Three-Month Jail Term on Fraud Charge

A man who gave the wrong name on a credit application for a television set was sentenced in city police court today to a three-month jail term.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he was convinced that Frederick L. Basanta made a false representation with intent to defraud MacDonald's Ltd. of $233.50 Oct. 6.

Counsel James Proudfoot contended there was no evidence of intent to defraud and Basanta should be given the benefit of doubt in the case.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said the accused had a previous record of similar offences.

Evidence presented at the two-day trial disclosed Basanta gave the name "Lionel M. Basanta" in the credit application for a television set.

The set was delivered to him at the San Sebastian Auto Court after MacDonald's Ltd. received a favorable credit report. No further payments were made on the set after a $10 down payment.

Pinfold Leaving Aldermanic Seat

Five City Posts Open In December Election

Senior Victoria alderman, William F. Pinfold, today announced his resignation from city council.

Ald. Pinfold, who is acting-mayor in the mayor's absence; will attend his last council meeting and serve in that capacity, Nov. 22.

He said his resignation is brought about by pressure of business and private commitments next year.

His resignation comes in the middle of his two-year term and was timed to avoid the need for a by-election.

This means Victoria voters will be called upon to name five aldermen Dec. 13, instead of the usual four.

SIX YEARS

Ald. Pinfold has served seven years on council, four years as chairman of finance and one year as chairman of public works. At present, he is chairman of the finance committee.

"I have made certain plans and commitments for the next year which will keep me away (from city hall). Rather than put the city to the bother of a by-election later, I am announcing my resignation at this time."

"I have had seven years of it, and I feel I have done my part. I've enjoyed it and I would like to offer my thanks to the many people of this city who have supported me year after year."

He noted Mayor Percy Scurrell will be out of town at a Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities meeting Nov. 22.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Crecent, Athabaskan, Sioux, New Glasgow, Ste. Therese, Stettler, Sussexvale on exercises in B.C. coastal waters, returning Nov. 16.

Comox, James Bay, Fortune on exercises, returning Nov. 23.

Christmas Seals Go Into Mail This Weekend

Annual Christmas Seal Campaign will be launched in Victoria this week-end when the bulk of 24,500 letters containing seals are sent to residents.

Already some 1,000 letters have been sent to Sidney residents.

British Columbia Tuberculosis Society will begin its campaign Thursday with a $200,000 target for sales in the province. Last year the campaign raised $108,725.

Victoria goal will be upwards of $25,000, chairman and director of the campaign Mrs. M. A. Kimmitt said today. Donations to the local campaign last year totalled nearly $20,000.

Each envelope sent in the mails contains two sheets of Christmas seals valued at $1 each.

Donations may be sent to Christmas Seal Campaign headquarters, Room 14, 749 Broughton Street.

The Victoria Soroptimist Club is sponsoring the campaign for the 10th year.

ON LICENCE PROBE

Mayor Clarifies Dowell's Position

Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. Don Smith issued statements today clarifying the reported withdrawal of Ald. Arthur Dowell from a council committee set up to investigate city business licensing.

"Ald. Arthur Dowell was never appointed to the committee," said the mayor, therefore could not withdraw.

"The mayor's office informed me of my appointment as chairman and said Ald. Dowell and Ald. Austin Curtis would serve with me," said Ald. Smith. But he added there may have been an error in the information.

He said "the mayor told me later that, Ald. Dowell had chosen not to serve."

DOWELL DECLINED

"The mayor stated to me it was his intention to name Ald. Dowell but the alderman declined. There is no doubt though I was advised, Ald. Dowell was appointed, but there may have been an error in transmission of the message."

Ald. Smith announced his committee last Wednesday.

Ald. Dowell, questioned Tuesday about the report he had withdrawn, said, "I told the mayor I'd prefer he put someone else on it. I felt it was a finance committee job, and I am on so many committees now, but if the mayor insists, I'll go on it."

The committee was set up by motion of Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson and Ald. M. H. Mooney at last council meeting, culminating a lengthy battle by Ald. Smith for a new scale of trades licence schedules.

He says the city is passing up $175,000 in additional revenue which could reduce local taxes two mills. Some businesses pay no licence, others not enough in comparison with other centres, he states.

He called the issue a hot potato, "too hot for council to handle."

Mayor Scurrell said none of the other aldermen on city council except Ald. Curtis and Smith would serve on the committee.

"They know their hands are tied by the Municipal Act, and they can't do everything."

"They know that Ald. Smith's figure of $175,000 is perfectly absurd. They know that's an exaggeration and there is no hope, until we get new legislation, of making any changes."

Ald. Pinfold today reiterated his stand, taken when his finance committee looked into the licence probe, that the matter should await action by the provincial government in co-operation with a UBCM committee.

He said the Ontario government has made a schedule of business licences in Ontario and it could also be done here.

"The provincial government has access to federal government information without violating the privacy of a man's income tax, and ratios of charges for various types of business could be set," he said.

Esquimalt Trustee Seeks Re-Election

School trustee Richard Reeve will be trying for his fourth election by acclamation to a two-year term on the Greater Victoria School Board at Esquimalt elections Dec. 15.

Mr. Reeve announced today he will stand for re-election. To date, no other nominations for the office have been received by Esquimalt returning officer James Elrick.

He is serving his eighth year as a school trustee and has been re-elected by acclamation in the past three contests.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me through your paper where we can get a house number for our house? Most of the houses on Metchoin Road have numbers and we would like ours to be numbered too. A.E., RRI, Victoria.

A. In organized territory the municipal council is the authority to make such decisions. To have the procedure in unorganized territory made clear, your best plan is to write to the B.C. government. The Department of Municipal Affairs is suggested.

Q.—Will you please tell me what day of the week was Aug. 5, 1924? B.E.C.

A.—It was a Tuesday. That August began on a Friday and ended on a Sunday.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Darn Socks in Mere Seconds With New Iron-On Patches

By PENNY SAVER

If you enjoy darning socks and such, then the quick-as-a-whiz patches I found aren't for you, but for those of us with an aversion to darning, they're a real boon. No matter how small the job may seem to some, for me it's a chore, or at least, was. Now I can darn socks in a matter of seconds. Little sweater holes can be repaired, too, with the darning patches. Place a patch over the hole, press down for the required time with a hot iron, and there the job is finished. No sewing or fuss by this method. Completely washproof, the patches stay on and on. In a package is an assortment of patches in eight colors, and a darning knob to place under the hole, forming a base for the operation. Thirty-six patches and the knob are yours for just 29 cents. The patches are a fine knit so that they are adaptable for many wardrobe items.

Fur and fur fabric trim on hats, gloves, purses and many other pieces of clothing is being seen a great deal this winter. You don't have to pay a budget-breaking price for this high fashion, either. You may buy astrakhan trim in two- or four-inch widths in black, brown or the mottled grey for $1.75 or $2.49 a yard. Kiddies' clothes can also be trimmed with this smart fur-like wool fabric.

Wool jersey hoods in red, white, tan or brown feature wide scarves that can be tied or pinned in place, and are most attractive. For the girl who loves sporty clothes, these hoods will fit in well, for they look very smart with the popular car coats, and can be worn almost anywhere. They are $3.95.

Tartan hoods styled similarly are lined with white brushed wool for real warmth. During the day, wear the tartan side out, and for evening wear, reverse it and show off the pure white shag lining. The have to pay a budget-breaking variety of authentic tartans, are $4.95.

Trying to think of a really special gift for someone? How about a neat and compact portable radio? In town I've seen them for as low as $19.95. The cases are of tan plastic and there's an easily-gripped handle. The case measures about six by eight by two inches. Batteries are extra.

You'd be wise to start putting little things away for Christmas gifts. Call me and I'll tell you where I have the items mentioned in the column, many of them would solve some gift problems. My number is 2-3131.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CELERY STUFFING

Wipe fish with a damp cloth. Mix the ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper with the 1 tablespoon lemon juice and rub over both sides of the fish. Let stand 20 minutes. Rebel Against Black? Then Wear Blue

Tired of the uniformity of black? Of looking more chic than pretty? Of seeing your skin go dull? Of losing the lights in your hair?

Switch to blue, even if you go back to black the other six days of the week, counsels Hollywood beautician, Max Factor, Jr., who says the lapis-lazuli woollens, the sapphire chiffons, the turquoise velvets are pretty enough to make a woman look like a walking jewel, and are also wonderful to make up to.

He tells you how: in a capsule for night and day:

If it's sapphire, or turquoise, and it's an evening dress, wear a rosy make-up foundation (no yellow overtones to be color-drained by electric lights). For red contrast, your lipstick should be spectacularly red. Use blue eye shadow, your own natural shade of lash make-up and eyebrow pencil.

If it's a daytime woollen in lapis-lazuli, make up to your skin tones, using a pale make-up foundation. Wear clear pastel rouge (no blue in cheeks), a brilliant shade of lipstick, blue eyeshadow and lash make-up and eyebrow pencil according to your coloring, of course.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About a house-warming: We have some friends who are planning to move to their newly-built home in a few weeks.

Would it be correct for two very good friends to have an open house for them on a Sunday afternoon?

We thought that way would be better than a house-warming, since a large crowd can be accommodated much easier. We plan to have a table for cake, punch, nuts and candy. We have asked another friend to come in and play the piano during the afternoon.

Is it correct to open gifts (if any are received) during the afternoon or are they opened and acknowledged after everyone leaves? Who acts as hostess and greets the guests as they arrive, since the party is not being given by the owners?

Louise Davis answers:

Yes, indeed, it would be correct and very nice for friends to give an open house providing you are sure the homeowners are settled and the house in order. Those engineering the party are the hosts because they see it through from beginning to end, leaving the honor guests free of any responsibility.

The hosts can be near the entrance as the guests arrive and from there friends naturally will go to the new homeowners. This kind of party is informal and you will find these little details will take care of themselves without any special effort.

As to the gift opening, much would depend on the number received. If there are many, I suggest they be opened at another time. The guests of honor might be too busy being social to take time out unwrapping gifts.

Lucille Hatton, Ladysmith, was adjudged the best officer of the day and received the Erb trophy, and a prize also went to K. Brown, Victoria. Other prize winners were Ethel Palmerley, Ladysmith, and Ruby Stacey, Sidney.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Dan Fisher
(MOTHER OF 3)

Games for two—between baby and you—are not only fun but play an important part in helping baby to learn the three big C's—coordination, cooperation and concentration. Anyone for peek-a-boo or patty-cake?

Handy idea. Easy way to determine which hand your baby is going to be handiest with: offer objects at his middle-most point. Natural grasping instinct will soon show which hand wants to take the lead.

Meal-y idea. Best "growing foods" for the baby who's growing by leaps and bounds are meat proteins—because they encourage growth and aid in the development of all body structures. Excellent source of high quality proteins: Gerber Strained Meats! Made from selected juicy cuts, they're specially processed to remove most of the fat and coarse tissue—and to preserve the utmost in vitamin and mineral values. "All are pure meat with just enough broth to brighten the flavor and enhance the texture."

Seating arrangement. Sit-up babies like a change of scene so why not treat your wee one to a special seating arrangement occasionally. In the living room, say, while you're doing pick-up chores—or just visiting with daddy. A car-seat, attached to chair or davenport, is fun for a change—or even a stroller is fine. Hard to beat "family-circle" doings.

For the likes of tykes—a lunch or supper suggestion that's high in appetite appeal.

HONEY-LEMON BEETS
1 container Gerber Strained Beets*
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ teaspoon honey
¼ teaspoon salt.
Combine ingredients—warm and serve. M-m-m, more please!

Special guests at the reception were their son, Mr. John (Jack) Smith of Prince Rupert, and his bride, the former Donna A. Brunlees of Nanaimo, who were married in Vancouver, Tuesday morning.

Gold and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the rooms and a two-tier wedding cake was cut by the honor guests. Following the reception, a family dinner was held at Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mrs. Smith wore a dress of teal blue crepe with a corsage of golden orchids, for the occasion.

Fifty years ago the couple was married in the Church of Our Lady, Star of the Sea, at St. Anne's-on-Sea, Lancashire, Eng. Mr. Smith was born March 28, 1884, in Northampton, Eng., and Mrs. Smith, nee Mary Caroline Cotton, was born Feb. 6, 1881, in Longridge, Lancashire, Eng.

Mr. Smith came to Canada in 1903 and the couple made a permanent home in this country in 1910. They lived 30 years in Quebec City, where Mr. Smith was publisher of the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, and moved to Victoria in 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have five sons and two daughters: Dr. Vincent Smith, Mr. Thomas Smith, Mr. Edwin (Ted) Smith, Vancouver; Mr. Gilbert Smith, Mr. John (Jack) Smith, Prince Rupert; Mrs. J. B. Fraser (Dorothy) of Toronto, and Mrs. John P. Archibald (Hilda) of San Diego, Calif. All the sons and daughters were in Victoria for the celebration.

Willoughby-Rawnsley Vows In Centennial United Church

An exquisitely styled gown of white lace in princess style was chosen by bride, Miss Janet Ruth Rawnsley for the ceremony which united her in marriage with William Thomas Willoughby in Cen- tennial United Church.

Rev. Douglas B. Carr officiated at the ceremony. Chrysanthemums formed a background setting.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rawnsley, 1289 Rever- comb Place, was radiant in her lace gown fashioned with back panels of taffeta, a round off- shoulder neckline trimmed with sequins and long sleeves. A cor- onet trimmed with sequins held her illusion net veil. Her bouquet was of red roses, and she wore a necklace, the groom's gift.

Matron of honor, Mrs. R. War- ren; bridesmaid, Miss Mar- garet Willoughby, sister of the groom, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Sandra Rawnsley, sister of the bride, were gowned in bal- lerina-length net and lace dresses in green, blue and rose net over green taffeta, respectively. They wore matching coronets and car- ried cascades of chrysanthemums.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas John Willoughby, 816 Tol- mie Avenue, had Jim Dibble as best man and Jack Willoughby and Everett Strom as ushers. Pink chrysanthemums and fern formed the decorations in the lower ballroom at the Crystal Gar- den where the reception was held. A three-tier wedding cake flanked by white candles was cut by the newlyweds. Ray Rawnsley pro- posed the toast to the bride, his niece.

For a honeymoon on the main- land, the bride wore an avocado green wool dress and topcoat with tan hat, purse, and shoes, and a gardenia corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby will live at 816 Tolmie Avenue.

Armchair Travellers

This is the story of how an idea has become a tradition. And how a group of senior citizens can sit comfortably in a warm room and yet, travel around the world.

More than three years ago, a YWCA volunteer worker, conceived the idea of this program for senior citizens on Wednesday afternoons. It was called the "Armchair Travellers."

In the beginning the program was presented in the hall adjoining the Church of Our Lord and the women of that congregation poured the afternoon tea.

Business men of Victoria assisted with the program, showing pictures of their travels to distant lands. The late H. J. Pendray showed color slides of Spain and Portugal; J. C. Nimmo gave picture stories on a trip to Europe and western Europe, including slides of the Coronation; Cmdr. and Mrs. Ivan Day have shown many interesting films of Australia.

At the end of two years, this popular program was moved to the YWCA recreation room, but the ladies of the Church of Our Lord continued to give the refreshments.

Today, the "armchair travellers" fill the "Y" recreation room each Wednesday to visit in imagination, many far-away places, to drink a cup of tea and to talk to old friends.

Mrs. W. Winkles, Ritz Hotel, is one of those who travel each week to far-away places while drinking a cup of tea.

Girl Guides' Puppet Show En Route Across Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Eighty dollars and 47 demi-puppets have become goodwill ambassadors for the Girl Guide movement across Canada.

The collection, handwork of doll and puppet makers in 18 countries, was assembled in England. It has already toured countries in Europe and now is moving across Canada.

During a week's showing here, visitors to the display contributed to a silver collection which will help send Ottawa guides to the Canadian Guide Camp at Dow Lake, near Huntsville, Ont., next summer.

Mrs. P. D. Holt, division commissioner of the Ottawa Girl Guides Association, said response to the display here was very good. The Ottawa division has more than 3,000 guides.

HISTORIC CHARACTERS
The exquisitely detailed dolls and puppets represent characters in history and fiction, and some wear the costumes of the country where they were made.

A dark-skinned Maori doll, and a Swiss doll, with a bunch of Edelweiss, her country's national flower.

Among the personalities of history are a small but resplendent Bonnie Prince Charlie on a white horse, and a Robert Bruce in shining armor, studying a spider.

Alice in Wonderland gazes beside Jenny Geddes, who holds a milking stool. Jenny, so the story goes, threw a stool in Edinburgh's St. Giles Cathedral because she didn't like bishops.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Must Exercise to Improve Just Certain Parts of Body

Many women write to know if there is any special diet which will reduce or build up certain parts of the body. Unfortunately the answer is "No." If you are generally overweight you will have to count your calories but should maintain a well-balanced diet. If you have the correct number of pounds but some out-of-proportion measurements you will have to remedy that with exercise.

There are no special foods which will build up a certain area. The only way you can build bust, leg or hip contour is by developing the muscles involved. There is great confusion in the feminine mind as to bust development. Women are told by their physicians that they cannot make the bust larger by exercising. It is true that you cannot increase the size of the bust itself, but you can increase your bust measurement and make the bust you have more prominent. You do this by developing the chest muscles. I have explained before that this is somewhat like wearing falsies underneath the bust except that these are natural falsies.

In thinking of figures we must not forget the hollows which often occur on the thigh line. This is quite usual for a woman from 30 on and we often see it even in younger ones. Some fatty accumulation is involved but this is also a question of muscle slump. Try these exercises:

1. Lie on the floor on your back with your arms resting on the floor at your sides, legs straight. Swing your left leg sideways, keeping the heel close to the floor. Swing it back to place. Continue. After a while swing the right leg sideways and back.

2. Lie on your left side. Brace yourself by placing your right hand on the floor in front of you. Make large circles with your right leg. Make the circle as complete as possible. After a time turn onto your right side, place your left hand on the

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Once a Calavo avocado has softened enough for eating, plan on using it as soon as possible. Meanwhile store in the refrigerator to retard further softening.

Carrots cooked Chinese style are good for a change. To make them, pan-fry shredded raw carrots and sliced onions together and season with salt, pepper and a dash of curry powder.

Established in 1886, the ANPA has accumulated a vast storehouse of information on publishing problems.

ANPA maintains offices in New York City and in Chicago and owns and operates the only research laboratory in the world devoted exclusively to the problems of newspaper production.

Other ANPA departments deal with newspaper production and consumption, traffic and transportation, credit, labor and personnel relations, mechanical production and newspaper administration.

ANPA President William Dwight, president and general manager of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript-Telegram, welcomed The Times into membership with the comment that "The ANPA is happy to have your newspaper as a member because we are confident we can render service to you, and the ANPA, too, will benefit by having your newspaper in our association."

TOP FIVE B.C. centennial posters picked by three-man panel drew $100 each for artists George E. Crawford, Herbert Gilbert, Art Hopping, Glen Startup and Dick Vandenhoozen, all of Greater Vancouver. Judges, well known in Vancouver art circles, are Fred Amess, John Korner and Peter Downes. Also offered are a grand prize of $400 and second and third awards of $100 each.

B.C. Centennial Draws Queries From Overseas

British Columbia's Centennial spirit is "spreading" all over the British Commonwealth, L. J. Wallace told delegates to the second general meeting of the B.C. Centennial Committee at the Legislative Buildings Tuesday.

"We are already receiving numerous inquiries from countries overseas," said Mr. Wallace, who is chairman of the committee.

He added that more than 70 local committees have been organized in cities, villages, municipalities and rural areas throughout the province. "Hundreds of people are working on centennial celebration plans from the populated areas of Vancouver to the remote areas of the Queen Charlotte Islands," Mr. Wallace said. "Arrangements are being made to organize a number of national and international events during the centenary year."

Larry McCance, executive secretary, listed a wide range of projects now being developed.

They include swimming pools, parades, pageants and exhibitions organized by individual communities who will receive per capita grants to assist them.

SPECIAL PLATES

Final arrangements have been made for the production and distribution of green and gold centennial licence plates.

In January, half a million windshield stickers advertising the centennial will be distributed with 1957 licence plates.

A commemorative B.C. centennial stamp will be issued at the same time as the Canadian Philatelic Society holds its exhibition in Victoria in May, 1958.

Reports on the work of the 17 sub-committees responsible for provincial projects were submitted to the committee.

PNE OFFERS HELP

Mr. Wallace announced that the Pacific National Exhibition had offered some of its facilities to centennial committees for the staging of celebrations during 1958.

Centennial projects now underway include an official history of British Columbia, an anthology, the restoration of Fort Langley, a special silver dollar and an official souvenir record book.

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross entertained members of the Centennial committee at Government House following the meeting.

Premier Bennett welcomed members of the committee on behalf of the government.

Queen Will Share $54,000 With Finder

WINNIPEG (CP)—Deputy Attorney-General O. M. M. Kay said Tuesday that if no one establishes ownership of $54,000, found by a carpenter in a black briefcase hidden in a Winnipeg home, it will become "treasure trove" and divided between "Her Majesty the Queen and the finder."

The money was found Friday by Lionel Wuckert while he was remodeling a bedroom closet in the home of W. H. Rice. The briefcase was hidden under a fixture in the closet. It contained seven envelopes with $10, $20 and $100 bills packed inside and $700 in bonds.

Police said the money now is in a safety deposit box in a bank.

How Do Peanuts Grow?

The peanut is more a pea than a nut. The plant is a member of the legume family, cousin to the bean and the pea. You can recognize the family resemblance in the blossoms, leaves and vine of the peanut plant. The seeds also look like beans and when fresh they taste somewhat like sweet peas. They turn into those nutty nibbles only after they have been properly roasted and toasted.

Our peanut crop grows in the U.S. southland. Every year the harvest is around 800 million pounds. That's a big pile of peanuts, but not nearly enough. For the peanut plant is one of the most useful of all farm crops. Andy says you cannot praise the wonderful plant too highly. It provides cattle feed. It yields rich oils and fats. It even enriches the soil in which it grows. And we all know those tasty nibbles it gives to us. A bag of peanuts is one of the rare foods that is both a mouth-watering treat and good for us at the same time.

Considering all these good points, it is strange how many people are not certain how the wonderful peanut grows. If you say that peanuts grow in the ground you are likely to start an argument. Andy talked to a big Texas farmer who grows acres and acres of peanuts. The peanut, he learned, is also called the earthnut, the ground nut and the goober—all because the wonderful seeds ripen in the ground. Yes, you must look for ripe peanuts in or on the ground.

Every parent plant does its best for the next generation. Plants have a million ways for giving their seeds a good start in life. The peanut goes one better than most plants. The parent tries to plant the seeds right in the soil. This does not lead to overcrowding, because the peanut plant is an annual herb. The parent plant will be finished before the next generation grows up. Being a legume, its roots have added valuable nitrates to the ground. The new plants are sure of rooting in rich soil.

The blossoms poke straight up in the air, like any pea blossoms inviting the bees. As the flowers fade, the stems bend down, until they touch the ground. The pods grow, the shells dry and the seeds ripen in or on the soil. The rich harvest rolls around regardless of tricky weather. For the sturdy peanut thrives in rain or drought. And what a harvest it yields!

The green vine makes over a ton of hay per acre. There will be 30 to 60 bushels of nuts in the shell per acre. The shells and even the papery nut skins make fine cattle food. The nuts themselves yield rich oil, fats for oleomargarine, delicious peanut butter and flour for waffles, cakes and muffins.

Peanut meat is amazingly rich in the foods we need. One pound of it contains more protein than there is in a pound of sirloin steak, more carbohydrates than in a pound of potato and one-third of the fat in a pound of butter. An acre of peanuts yields far more protein than an acre of either wheat or oats and over five times more valuable fat. How about a peanut snack right now?

Andy sends a Hammond Ambassador World Atlas to Michael Gold, age 14, of Berkeley, Calif., for his question: How much is a horse power? A machinist must know exactly how much work his machine can do. There are special units for measuring this kind of energy. One of these units is the foot-pound. You use up one foot-pound of energy when you lift a pound weight one foot off the ground. A machine uses 300 foot-pounds to lift 100 pounds of weight three feet off the ground. You and that machine could take all day to use up those foot-pounds of energy. But a machinist must know how fast his machine can perform. This kind of energy is called power. A machine may have the power to lift 100 pounds one foot every second. The horsepower is used to measure foot-pounds per second. One horsepower is equal to 550 foot-pounds per second. This is a little more energy than even a strong horse could exert. Actually, one horsepower is equal to the work potential of about one good horse and a third.

(BB PLUS) "SATELLITE IN THE SKY" (Capitol)—In Warner Brothers' "Satellite in the Sky" the British prove they can keep pace with the best in the science-fiction field.

True, it isn't as spectacular as such top American productions as "This Island Earth" and "Forbidden Planet." But at least it is more believable than most because nowhere is the scene infiltrated with spotty, dotty, one-eyed, antennae monsters from outer space or any other variation of the "little men."

Indeed, "Satellite in the Sky" is just that. A rocket is shot into outer space for "scientific investigations." It is only after the voyage is under way that members of the crew learn they are carrying the deadly super-bomb T-1. This is to be detonated miles in the sky so that the blast can be recorded by the nations of the world and thus be shown the futility of future wars.

There are many more thrills to the plot than this, of course. But to tell them here would mar the picture for ardent science-fiction fans. Suffice it to say that the photography lends space "space" so that it seems an awfully long way down and many customers will feel like clutching their theatre seats more than they usually do.

The cast, headed by Kieron Moore, Barry Keegan, Jimmy Hanley, Brian Forbes and Donald Wolfelt is excellent, playing their rocket flight down which pushes blood pressures up. Lois Maxwell as the woman reporter stowaway plays her role nicely, as does Shirley Lawrence, fiancée to one of the crew members, and Thea Gregory, wife to one of the pilots.

Although most of the players are unknown on this side of the Atlantic, don't be fooled. They are competent artists who make "Satellite in the Sky" a good picture for those who care about science-fiction films.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN to a girl in "The Solid Gold Cadillac" now playing at the Odeon Theatre. Movie, based on the long-running Broadway stage hit stars Judy Holliday and Paul Douglas.

Mass Choir Concert Studied For Christmas

A suggestion to hold a carol-singing concert by massed choirs at the Memorial Arena in December, will be considered by the Chamber of Commerce Christmas decorations committee.

The concert was suggested at a committee meeting Monday called to discuss a program for creating atmosphere for the Christmas festivities.

Committee chairman Anthony Lort said such a concert could be made non-commercial and opened to the public free of charge.

In addition, the committee favored participation of district high school bands playing carols on various street corners.

Other suggestions included:

1. Festooning downtown lamp standards with garlands of greenery from basket arms to the ground.
2. Strapping Christmas trees, complete with colored lights to the posts.
3. Stringing additional colored

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Actor Paul Kelly died of a heart attack Wednesday afternoon in his Beverly Hills home.

The 57-year-old star suffered the attack shortly after returning home from voting. His wife, Mardell, was present when he died.

Kelly, who was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., lived a life filled with the excitement of a movie scenario. He made a comeback as an actor after serving two years in prison for manslaughter in the fatal beating in 1927 of singer Ray Raymond, the first husband of actress Dorothy Mackaye.

Miss Mackaye, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1940, was sentenced to 10 months in prison for concealing facts about the case. But when Kelly was released from prison, she was waiting for him and they were married.

Kelly began his career with the old Vitaphone Company in Brooklyn. In addition to his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mimi Kelly, of New York.

TV with Gilbert and Sullivan's 'HMS PINAFORE' ON C-2 AT 10

TRouble AHEAD? - In approximately two-and-a-half hours the guessing will be over as to how badly local Channel 6 will interfere with reception from Seattle's Channel 5. CHECK-TV will be on the air and we'll know.

But now comes another worry for TV fans. In early December Channel 12 will boost its power from 33,000 watts to 225,000 watts.

According to the experts this is bound to wash out Channel 13's reception here altogether.

This is to be rued, of course. Because the Seattle-Tacoma channel is a favorite here because it carries the hockey games and also the Pacific Coast baseball.

Nonetheless, to be brutal about it, the loss of Channel 13 will affect less than 5 per cent of our citizens. Because that is about all who can bring in the channel at the present time.

Far more serious is the fact that the new power of Channel 12 will likely affect reception on Channel 11.

Now this is a horse of an entirely different color. Channel 11 is one of the most popular channels received here. It carries such prime favorites as the Ed Sullivan Show, Playhouse 90, Ford Star Jubilee, GE Theatre, Alfred Hitchcock and other exclusive shows.

Fortunately, however, many of Channel 11's major programs, such as the football games, the baseball games, Climax, Steel Hour, 20th Century-Fox, I Love Lucy, Shower of Stars, Arthur Godfrey and so on, are carried simultaneously on Channel 12. The Sullivan, Hitchcock, Ford, etc., not shown by 12 can be picked up a couple of weeks after their initial showing on Channel 2 and Channel 6.

In addition to these quieting thoughts, TV technicians here point out that those who now receive a strong 11 signal are likely to continue to bring in Channel 11 programs with little interference. And those who can't possibly overcome their difficulties through readjustment of their antenna, the addition of traps and other technical devices.

At this time it would seem sensible not to call a serviceman into your home until both Channels 12 and 6 are on the air. Then steps may be taken with both difficulties in mind. At least the expense for the individual might be kept down by doing so.

Early Decision Demanded On Hospital

LAKE COWICHAN—Members of Lake Cowichan Hospital Association have asked Health Minister Eric Martin for a decision by Nov. 26 on whether it may proceed with plans for a hospital here.

If there is no decision, said G. E. Wilson, secretary, the association will start returning the $66,000 subscribed by private donors and held on deposit in a local bank.

Concern was felt here regarding a recent BCHIS report on acute hospital bed requirements on Vancouver Island that recommended against construction of a hospital here.

WANT APPROVAL

"Local industry has promised to match most of the $66,000 dollar fog dollar, upon our receiving 'approval in principle.' This proves the people in this district are ready to assume their own responsibilities for hospital services," Mr. Wilson wrote to the minister.

"In our visits, you encouraged us in our efforts and you were kept informed of our progress at all times," he added.

Money already has been spent on development of a 17-acre hospital site west of the village and overlooking Cowichan Lake.

Gas for Nanaimo To Flow Dec. 1

Will Be First for Domestic Fuel Since 1917; System Complete by '59

By DON INGHAM
Times Island Editor

NANAIMO—Butane gas will start flowing to Nanaimo homes by Dec. 1, Dr. Larry Giovando, president of the Vancouver Island Gas Co. Ltd., has announced.

Work is under way on a conversion plant that will mix butane with air, and pipeline crews have begun laying mains.

Although the first loop of the system should be activated within a month, a five-year program has been prepared for gas plant development, and six years for customer services. The distribution system will be complete by 1959.

The system calls for importation of butane gas in liquid form, mixing it with air in the proper proportions, and pumping it into the system. For a year at least the gas will arrive by rail, and will be handled on a spur being constructed beside the plant site on Caledonia Avenue.

If shipment is ever to be made by barge, marine landing facilities are conveniently close.

Pryde and Flavin Engineering Ltd. of Calgary has charge of design, supervision, and inspection, and actual construction and pipe laying is being done by Marine Pipeline and Engineering Ltd. of Vancouver.

At present the Caledonia Avenue site is being cleared, pipe is being tarred and wrapped at a waterfront site beside George S. Pearson bridge, and pipe-laying crews are working toward having an average of one-half mile of pipe buried each day.

The 800-foot railroad spur extends southward from the E. & N. Railway track, and will service the 10 large storage tanks to be erected in a clearing above the plant site. They will be built by Victoria Machinery Depot, and the first two will be in position by the end of this month.

from the John Hart development.

Project engineer C. E. Nickel of Edmonton said the butane air mist has exactly the same burning characteristics as natural gas, and that if natural gas ever reaches Vancouver Island the changeover will be effected without any inconvenience or expense to consumers.

"Piping natural gas to the island will be a problem," he said, "but it will be solved, and probably within a very few years."

Officers of the company, under Dr. Giovando's presidency, are Earl K. Fletcher, vice-president; Lloyd A. Wallace, secretary-treasurer and manager; George D. Sherwood and Bernard Dobson, all of Nanaimo.

Start of service next month will mark the first time Nanaimo has had piped domestic gas since 1917, when the Nanaimo Gas Company closed down after 31 years of operation.

SINCLAIR WARNING

B.C. Salmon Industry Won't Bow to Hydro

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fisheries Minister Sinclair warned industry Tuesday night that the rich salmon resources of B.C.'s inland waterways will be safeguarded at all costs.

He implied that if the power-versus-fish controversy surrounding the Fraser River comes to a showdown, the power interests will be forced to give in.

Mr. Sinclair, in a banquet address to the western division, Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, said he hopes that within the next five years a solution will be reached that will allow both fishing and power development to thrive. But he added:

"In the end I am afraid that food will have to be the paramount consideration. Food resources will become more and more important as the world's population increases. We have a responsibility not only to our own future generations but also to those of the entire world. In the end, you can't eat a kilowatt."

Mr. Sinclair said the big power companies have shown they appreciate the value of the B.C. salmon fishery, which yields $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 annually, and the sentimental attachment which fishermen have to the industry.

Studies were being conducted into means of allowing the fisheries to survive while simultaneously water resources are developed to power mining and industry. Nevertheless, Mr. Sinclair said no salmon river should be dammed until every other waterway has been developed for hydro purposes. "There should not be a single dam built on the Fraser until the Columbia is used," he continued. The Columbia River could supply enough power to satisfy B.C. demand for 15 years. Oil and natural gas, coal and atomic power should be thoroughly utilized before the power potential of any salmon river is exploited.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER... Popularity Record

Ike's Margin Huge But Loses Congress

Soviet Offers Troops

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Two Soviet satellites, Romania and Czechoslovakia, offered today to contribute troops to the international force which Dag Hammarskjöld, UN secretary-general, hopes to rush to the Middle East to police the battle area.

MOSCOW (AP)—Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov called on the United Nations today to end the "armed aggression" of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt, and offered Russian troops to help do the job.

Zhukov was addressing the gigantic Red Square celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution's 38th anniversary.

Diplomats of the United States, Britain, France and all other members of the Atlantic Alliance except Iceland and Denmark stayed away in protest against the Soviet intervention in Hungary. (See also Page 3).

Asian and African diplomats were solidly in attendance. Several hundred thousand civilians shouted "glory to the Soviet Union" as they marched almost endlessly through Red Square.

FLY-FAST OMITTED

The usual fly-past of jet bombers and fighters was omitted, presumably because of a low overcast. The 21-minute procession of Soviet army units through the square showed no new military equipment. There was the usual display of motorized guns, troop carriers, armored cars, rocket launchers and heavy anti-aircraft cannon.

Civilian marchers carried banners demanding "Hands off Egypt" and "Out of Egypt, imperialist aggressors." Other banners praised the Hungarian workers for defeating fascism.

The wartime Soviet hero told the mass rally: "The Soviet Union calls upon the United Nations resolutely to stop the armed aggression of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt and actively to support the Arab peoples in their struggle for freedom and independence."

"As regards the Soviet Union, she is prepared, in accordance with a UN decision to take a real part with her armed forces in the liquidation of this aggression."

Zhukov's speech renewed demands for intervention in Egypt voiced two days ago by Premier Bulganin.

RECORDS SET

President Eisenhower's victory was the greatest Republican presidential win in U.S. history.

It was only the second time that a President of one party was elected while both Houses of Congress were won by the other.

Ike's electoral college vote margin has been exceeded only twice before, both by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

AT A GLANCE

Standings in the U.S. election race, with comparison to 1952, are shown in the following table on the basis of still incomplete returns, but sufficient to give the decision:

Democrats Gain Edge in Both Houses

WASHINGTON (CP)—A troubled United States electorate has turned to a Republican president and a Democratic Congress to guide its destinies in a war-threatened world.

Once again, as in 1952, the sound of distant gunfire casts its shadow over the campaign. And for the second time, by an even more emphatic margin, the voters turned to Dwight Eisenhower.

They gave him 457 of the 531 votes in the electoral college and approximately 58 per cent of the popular vote—both figures in excess of his 1952 victory—as he resoundingly defeated Adlai Stevenson, his Democratic challenger, for the second time. But the same returns that gave overwhelming majorities to Eisenhower in state after state brought news of Democratic victories in congressional

Senate Loss Bitter Blow to GOP

They recaptured the House of Representatives by a margin that appeared, in incomplete returns, to be as large or larger than the 232-to-203 edge they gained in the off-year election of 1954. They led the Republicans 49 to 46 in the Senate with a lead in the remaining seat.

Loss of the Senate was a particularly bitter blow to the Republicans, who had hoped the drawing power of Eisenhower at the head of the ticket would enable them to erase the 49-to-47 margin the Democrats had held for the last two years.

More than a century ago another general, Zachary Taylor, found himself faced with an opposition legislature after the 1848 election. Taylor, a Whig, also was given a Democratic Congress to work with. It hasn't happened since in a presidential election year.

But the congressional results took nothing away from Eisenhower's personal triumph. Having captured 39 states with an electoral vote of 442 in 1952, he regained all but one of them and picked up three more, cutting even more deeply into what once was the solidly Democratic south.

He wrested Louisiana from the Democrats for the first time since Rutherford B. Hayes carried it 80 years ago. And he took the border states of Kentucky and West Virginia, which Stevenson had won in 1952. The only state he lost to the Democrats was Missouri.

Popular Vote Spectacular

And despite the unanimous predictions of pre-election forecasters and public opinion polls that Eisenhower's popular vote would be reduced, it shot up, spectacularly as his electoral tally. His steady 58 per cent share of the count compared with the 55.4 per cent he gained against Stevenson in their first contest.

If the voters were dissatisfied, they apparently took it out on rank-and-file Republican candidates. They still liked Ike. They didn't go along with the president on his project of rebuilding the Republican party along the lines of his own liberal thinking as opposed to the more conservative views of the "old guard."

One of Eisenhower's first supporters for the presidency, Senator James Duff, was unseated in Pennsylvania by Joseph S. Clark, Jr., the Democratic mayor of Philadelphia. In Ohio, Senator George Bender, a consistent supporter of Eisenhower policies, was defeated by Democratic Governor Frank J. Lausche.

Governor Arthur G. Langlie, the president's hand-picked candidate to unseat Washington's Senator Warren G. Magnuson, found the job too much for him and Douglas McKay, who resigned as secretary of the interior to contest Wayne Morse's seat in Oregon, was defeated by the popular ex-Republican.

There were a couple of notable exceptions to the trend. John Sherman Cooper, whom

HMCS Magnificent May Be Used As Mobile Base

(See Also Page 3)

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today announced Canada will offer a Canadian contingent of more than 1,000 men to the international United Nations force for the Middle East.

Mr. St. Laurent said in a written statement handed to reporters following a three-hour Cabinet meeting that Canada "will be prepared to have this force lifted by the RCAF to the Middle East."

The statement said: "To comply with the resolutions of the United Nations the Canadian government has agreed to make an offer of a Canadian contingent to the emergency international United Nations force for the Middle East. This proposal is subject to adjustment and/or re-arrangement—after consultation with the United Nations commander."

"Arrangements have already been made for a group of Canadian officers to be available today for consultation with the UN commander (Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada) in New York as soon as he arrives."

The statement said the Canadian contingent would be augmented by ordnance, army service corps and medical and dental detachments to ensure that the group is self-contained and can operate independently from its own base.

MOBILE BASE

It added Canada proposes to provide this contingent with a temporary mobile Canadian base for the first phase of its policing operations.

"The Canadian government," the statement continued, "is prepared to use HMCS Magnificent (aircraft carrier) for the purpose of transporting vehicles and stores to the Middle East and for use as a temporary mobile Canadian base for rations, medical supplies, ammunition, fuel and limited accommodation stores."

"HMCS Magnificent will also provide a small hospital to accommodate the sick and injured in the force; accommodation for a force headquarters and command."

Russians Shell Hospitals In Budapest; Food Scarce

By LYNN HEINZERLING

VIENNA (AP)—The shelling of Budapest by Soviet troops reached its highest point Tuesday night, and food in some areas of the city was running out.

Trustworthy information on the besieged city, received in Austria today, gave this picture: Soviet forces have been systematically trying to wipe out pockets of resistance. Hospitals and clinics were among the targets. At a time Tuesday when Moscow was broadcasting that all resistance had been liquidated, shelling of the city was increasing.

A score of Russian tanks were reported destroyed in one engagement between Russians and Hungarians near the French Legation. This and other legations have been damaged.

About 700 Hungarians continued today to resist in the rubble-filled barracks. In some cases women were manning the guns.

RADIO OFF AIR

The Hungarian government radio stations abruptly went off the air at mid-day without giving a reason, but there still were scattered reports of occasional transmissions from the insurgents.

In London, Lord John Hope, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, said reports to Britain indicated fighting was still going on in Budapest late Tuesday night despite repeated Russian demand for surrender of the rebels' arms.

"According to a Red Cross report, civilian casualties from Russian firing have become very heavy. There is a complete curfew and anyone seen on the streets is liable to be shot by Soviet troops."

Hope said the Communists had abandoned pretence that Hungarians are fighting side by side with the Russians. "The fighting in Hungary bears the exclusive character of a Soviet repressive campaign," he said.

Hope appealed to Moscow on behalf of the British government to grant permission for Red Cross convoys to enter Hungary with food and medicine from Vienna.

An Italian newspaper claimed it had succeeded in establishing brief contact with a rebel radio transmitter in the battered Hungarian capital and was informed that fighting still raged.

Milan's Catholic newspaper Italia said it had received a rebel newspaper message saying Budapest was still a scene of the rebels' arms.

Well, there wuz enuff votes 't' like Ike an' heave Steve.

HUNGARY

battle, with many Soviet tanks and artillery weapons shelling parts of the town. The report said resistance centred in the capital's districts of Transtadt and Kohanya.

The Bavarian radio network at Gounich quoted a rebel radio broadcast as saying Dunapentele still was in the hands of the insurgents.

Russian tanks and troops launched their attack Sunday to wipe out the Hungarian bid for independence. All telephone and telegraph communications between Vienna and Budapest still were cut today. A similar communications blackout covered neighboring Romania.

Radio Budapest, voice of the new Soviet-installed Hungarian government, Tuesday night broadcast a pledge of "eternal friendship" with the Soviet Union, on the 39th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

REJECT AID

Radio Budapest also turned down Western offers of relief supplies, saying "our pride forbids us to accept the imperialist aid." It said assistance was pouring in from Russia and that Romania had promised to send building materials, foods and medicines.

Radio Pecs, a station in southern Hungary now held by the Russians, called for assistance of the population in disarming rebel bands. The Soviet commander there said Russian guns would be turned on any house from which rebels were firing.

Radio Free Europe quoted a broadcast from "Radio Kozma," a rebel transmitter in south-west Hungary, as saying: "The Russians demand that we lay down our arms. We won't do it, and if it is necessary we will fight to our last drop of blood."

Other information reaching Vienna said Soviet troops had fired on the Yugoslav legation in Budapest, killing a young diplomat and wounding several members of the legation staff.

Protests against the Soviet action in Hungary erupted at Luxembourg, where a group of 2,000 demonstrators stormed into the Soviet legation, tossed furniture out windows and burned it in the courtyard.

A foreign ministry official in New Delhi said Russia's Premier Bulganin had replied to Prime Minister Nehru's message expressing India's concern at developments in Hungary. He said Bulganin blamed "foreign influences" for the Hungarian uprisings.

Hungarian-Canadians Mock Ontario Couple

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—Hungarian-Canadians gathered Tuesday night in an angry crowd in front of the home of Michael Nadas, a Hungarian who returned from his homeland this week and said he saw nothing of revolt or bloodshed.

The crowd paraded in front of Nadas' house carrying placards which read: "Go back to Russia." The group was dispersed by police.

Nadas and his wife rode out of Hungary, where they were visiting, last weekend on a Red Cross truck returning to Vienna after delivering medical supplies.

Nadas was quoted in an interview Tuesday as saying he was in Budapest last Friday and saw little cause for alarm. He said: "It was expressing India's concern at developments in Hungary. He said Bulganin blamed 'foreign influences' for the Hungarian uprisings."

Harmony, Both On and Off Stage Key to Paganini Quartet Success

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON
Times Music Critic

The four members of the Paganini Quartet, in spite of playing together, traveling together and spending hours of rehearsal together, after 11 years are still fast friends.

They are in harmony with each other and that is undoubtedly one of the reasons their music has such a tremendous effect on the listener.

The group arrived in Victoria Tuesday and are relaxing at the Empress Hotel in preparation for their Art Gallery sponsored concert at Victoria High School tonight.

They have a certain happy-go-lucky attitude toward the exigencies of their mobile life. In fact they like it and have a lot of fun figuring out angles for smoothing the way. Like, for instance, they wear everything but their suits in nylon so frequent one-night stops don't create a laundry problem. There is always a handy wash basin.

Their favorite occupations include eating and movies. If they are in town a day before a concert they usually manage to squeeze in a movie between chores and practice.

They like cooking, too, but have not yet quite solved the problem of how to indulge in this pastime while on tour.

Each member of the quartet specializes in some succulent dish.

Henri Temianka, first violin, can give you a mouth-watering recipe for meat or fish balls; Gustave Rosseels, second violin, describes a dreamy Porto Flip; Lucien Laporte, cellist, specializes in calves' livers sauteed in butter and a virtuoso range of salad dressings; and Charles Foldart, the violist, does something with ducks in an orange sauce that the other three declare defies description.

On two previous occasions in Victoria, the quartet has drawn full houses, but that has become the rule rather than the exception "anywhere in the world where they appear."

When they played the Beethoven cycle in Washington, D.C., hundreds of people were turned away but the boys are not really surprised.

"Why not?" they comment. "It's as easy to listen to good music as to bad music."

The concert tonight which includes Beethoven and Mozart, begins at 8.30.

ELECTION

the president recalled from his post as ambassador to India, successfully returned to the Senate in Kentucky after an absence of two years, downing former Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby.

State Attorney-General Jacob K. Javits bested New York City's Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., in New York to win an important seat from the Democrats.

Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams, bucking the Republican tide, won an unprecedented fourth two-year term and loomed large in future Democratic political plans.

The popular governor has intimated that this will be his last term in the State House—that he plans to have a crack at the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Charles Potter in 1958. By 1960, he could rise still higher.

Foster Furcolo, a Democrat who startled the experts by giving Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall a down-to-the-wire battle in Massachusetts two years ago, had better luck this year in a try for the governorship. He defeated Sumner G. Whitier impressively to take the post vacated by Republican Christian Herter.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE OUT
A couple of candidates who ran independently after losing in their party's state primaries got nowhere, running a poor third and failing to force the defeat of the men who beat them.

Glenn Taylor, the banjo-playing former senator who ran for vice-president on Henry Wallace's Progressive party ticket in 1948, ran against Frank Church, who beat him in the Idaho senatorial primary. Mr. Church beat him badly and ousted old-guard Republican Senator Herman Welker into the bargain.

In Utah, the voters failed to sympathize with J. Bracken Lee, the isolationist governor, who wouldn't pay his income tax. Denied renomination in the primary, Lee finished a bad last behind Republican George D. Clyde.

As the campaign started, the chief cause for discontent appeared to be in some agricultural areas, where farmers tended to blame Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson's flexible price-support system for a falling-off in prices.

The Democrats wooed the farmers vigorously, promising a return to the high, rigid supports offered by Democratic presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

None of the farm states switched to Stevenson, but a few ousted Republicans at the congressional level.

Republican fears that the civil rights issue would cost them votes in the south also proved groundless. There had been a wave of southern resentment over last year's decision by the United States Supreme Court outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

Although Chief Justice Earl Warren, a former Republican governor of California, was the target of considerable southern abuse, it soon became apparent that the Democrats were split on the issue. Stevenson himself came out strongly in support of the court's decision.

Even though some dissident Democrats threw their support behind third-party candidates in the south, Eisenhower's margins were never in danger. None of the independents polled enough votes to affect the outcome in any state.

NEHRU GETS RUSS PLEDGE THEY'LL QUIT HUNGARY . . . IF

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin has assured India's Prime Minister Nehru that Russia will negotiate with the Hungarian government on withdrawal of Soviet troops "when peace and order is restored" in Hungary, it was announced here today.

Bulganin, replying to an Indian note expressing concern and distress over the situation, said Soviet troops intervened in Hungary only after "counter-revolutionary elements" had taken over.

Bulganin was understood to have promised that he would send Nehru another message on the subject.

Steel Smelter In Crow's Nest

French Group Backs Western Canada's First Plant; Will Cost $5 Million

CALGARY (CP)—Construction of a $5,000,000 steel smelter at Burnis at the eastern end of the Crow's Nest Pass will get under way in the next few days, W. A. Kovach, Social Credit MLA for Pincher Creek-Crow's Nest said Tuesday.

He predicted in an interview the new industry and first steel smelter in Western Canada would eventually transform the area into the "Little Pittsburgh" of Alberta.

Consultations were held in Calgary Monday between a French banking and industrial group and T. A. Brusset, president of West Canadian Petroleum, affiliated with West Canadian Collieries which has extensive coal interests in the pass.

Mr. Kovach said the group has found an economical way to smelt low-grade ore in the area which could not be processed by present methods. Limestone deposits are also nearby.

Phosphate contained in the ore could be used in fertilizer manufacture. This would replace supplies brought in from the United States for mixing with nitrogen extracted from natural gas at the Medicine Hat plant of Northwest Nitro Chemicals.

Members of the French group involved in the project are M. A. de Boissieu, president of the Union Europeenne Bank, Paris; M. Dhavernas, Montreal; M. E. de Lauriston, Paris.

Korean Plane Missing; Attacked by Red Jets
SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean government said two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters attacked two South Korean F-51 propeller-driven fighters today.

The South Koreans said one of their planes was missing. An announcement said the F-51s were on a regular training flight "bound for the west coast," but did not pinpoint the attack location.

One of the planes was said to have returned with 20 bullet holes.

Her captain, a be-medalled veteran of Second World War, said he kept up the normal routine of nightly movies and a daily ration of rum to help morale high. But by the look of the crew, they didn't need any boost. Their morale was high already.

The movies were shown in the ship's wardroom. Medical orderlies were already laying it out for use as a surgery when we went into action later, and surgical instruments glinted in the light from the screen.

Outside, seamen were queuing for the daily ration of rum, a tradition in the Royal Navy for over 150 years. It was passed out from a huge oak cask labelled "God Save the Queen."

munications between the force outside Canada."

The unit to be sent has not yet been selected but it has been decided to draw Canada's UN forces from this country rather than from her NATO brigade in Germany, he said.

Canada does not want to "diminish" her NATO forces overseas, Mr. St. Laurent said. The Canadian contingent will not be ready to move for several weeks. Certain "health precautions" had to be taken, presumably inoculations.

The actual cabinet order designating the Canadian force to be shipped has not yet been signed. Mr. St. Laurent said another cabinet meeting is scheduled for the afternoon.

He made clear last Monday that a special session of Parliament will be called within 10 days after the cabinet order is signed to get parliamentary approval of funds required for the troops.

Before the cabinet meeting Mr. St. Laurent said he thinks Canada is getting more credit than Russia for the cease-fire in Egypt.

PRIVATE MATTER

He was asked by a reporter whether his confidential letter to Sir Anthony Eden Monday had anything to do with the cease-fire called Tuesday night.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not divulge the contents of his private correspondence with the British prime minister.

The reporter suggested Russia should not get all the credit for the cease-fire by threatening Britain and France with attack.

"I think we are getting more credit than the Russians," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Top Canadian Pianist Plays Here Thursday

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON
Times Music Critic

Malcolm Troup is a Canadian musician who, in an intensely competitive field, has risen above the general level of good and proficient young pianists who receive encouraging and somewhat indulgent reviews.

He has succeeded in compelling the serious attention of seasoned critics in London, Toronto, Hamburg, Stuttgart, Bergen, Manchester, Salzburg, Vienna and Oslo. Their comments indicate that they believe him to be a major talent in the rising generation of piano virtuosos.

Victoria Municipal Chapter, IOOE, which is sponsoring Troup in a concert at Oak Bay Junior High School, Thursday night, is to be lauded for bringing fellow Canadians an opportunity to hear him.

It is too often the case that Canadians are the last to observe and acknowledge the talents that have developed in their midst, altogether too few organizations being willing to seek out and sponsor such talent.

In a letter to friends in this city, fellow Canadian and native Victorian who has attained an eminent place in pianistic circles abroad, Robin Wood, has warm words of praise for Malcolm Troup after hearing him in London.

"Don't fail to hear him if you get the opportunity," is Wood's advice. The pianist has chosen an excellent program for his concert here, which will begin at 8.30.

Darn Socks in Mere Seconds With New Iron-On Patches

By PENNY SAVER

If you enjoy darning socks and such, then the quick-as-a-whiz patches I found aren't for you, but for those of us with an aversion to darning, they're a real boon. No matter how small the job may seem to some, for me it's a chore, or at least, was. Now I can darn socks in a matter of seconds. Little sweater holes can be repaired, too, with the darning patches. Place a patch over the hole, press down for the required time with a hot iron, and there the job is finished. No sewing or fuss by this method. Completely washproof, the patches stay on and on. In a package is an assortment of patches in eight colors, and a darning knob to place under the hole, forming a base for the operation. Thirty-six patches and the knob are yours for just 29 cents. The patches are a fine knit so that they are adaptable for many wardrobe items.

Fur and fur fabric trim on hats, for real warmth. During the day, gloves, purses and many other wear the tartan side out, and for pieces of clothing is being seen a evening wear, reverse it and show great deal this winter. You don't off the pure white shag lining. The have to pay a budget-breaking tartan hoods, which come in a variety of authentic tartans, are price for this high fashion, either. You may buy astrakhan trim in two or four-inch widths in black, brown or the mottled grey for $1.75 or $2.49 a yard. Kiddies clothes can also be trimmed with this smart fur-like wool fabric.

Wool jersey hoods in red, white, tan or brown feature wide scarfs, ends that can be tied or pinned in place, and are most attractive. For the girl who loves sports clothes, these hoods will fit in well, for they look very smart with the popular car coats, and can be worn almost anywhere. They are $3.95.

Tartan hoods styled similarly are lined with white brushed wool

CELERY STUFFING

Two fish fillets, 1 pound each, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, ¼ cup butter (melted), 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1½ cups finely chopped celery, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon ground black pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ground-thyme leaves, 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice.

Wipe fish with a damp cloth. Mix the ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper with the 1 tablespoon lemon juice and rub over both sides of the fish. Let stand 20 minutes. In the meantime, melt butter in a saucepan, reserving 1 tablespoon for later use. Add onions and celery and saute until limp. Stir in remaining ingredients. Rebel Against Black? Then Wear Blue

Tired of the uniformity of black? Of looking more chic than pretty? Of seeing your skin go dull? Of losing the lights in your hair?

Switch to blue, even if you go back to black the other six days of the week, counsels Hollywood beautician, Max Factor, Jr., who says the lapis-lazuli woollens, the sapphire chiffons, the turquoise velvets are pretty enough to make a woman look like a walking jewel, and are also wonderful to make up to.

He tells you how: in a capsule for night and day:

If it's sapphire, or turquoise, and it's an evening dress, wear a rosy make-up foundation (no yellow overtones to be color-drained by electric lights). For red contrast, your lipstick should be spectacularly red. Use blue eye shadow, your own natural shade of lash make-up and eyebrow pencil.

If it's a daytime woollen in lapis-lazuli, make up to your skin tones, using a pale make-up foundation. Wear clear pastel rouge (no blue in cheeks), a brilliant shade of lipstick, blue eyeshadow and lash make-up and eyebrow pencil according to your coloring, of course.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About a house-warming: We have some friends who are planning to move to their newly-built home in a few weeks.

Would it be correct for two very good friends to have an open house for them on a Sunday afternoon? We thought that way would be better than a house-warming, since a large crowd modulated much easier. We plan to have a table for cake, punch, nuts and candy. We have asked another friend to come in and play the piano during the afternoon.

Is it correct to open gifts (if any are received) during the afternoon or are they opened and acknowledged after everyone leaves? Who acts as hostess and greets the guests as they arrive, since the party is not being given by the owners?

Louise Davis answers: Yes, indeed, it would be correct and very nice for friends to give an open house providing you are sure the homeowners are settled and the house in order. Those engineering the party are the hosts because they see it through from beginning to end, leaving the honor guests free of any responsibility.

The hosts can be near the entrance as the guests arrive and from there friends naturally will go to the new homeowners. This kind of party is informal and you will find these little details will take care of themselves without any special effort.

As to the gift opening, much would depend on the number received. If there are many, I suggest they be opened at another time. The guests of honor might be too busy being social to take time out unwrapping gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Smith received many flowers and cards of greeting on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Smith, 1050 Richardson Street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, Tuesday, with a reception given in their honor by their sons and daughters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Smith, a son and daughter-in-law, 1555 Despard Avenue.

Special guests at the reception were their son, Mr. John (Jack) Smith of Prince Rupert, and his bride, the former Donna A. Brunles of Nanaimo, who were married in Vancouver, Tuesday morning.

Gold and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the room and a two-tier wedding cake was cut

Wilson-Levi Wedding Vows Exchanged in Sooke Church

Baskets of chrysanthemums of flowers, centred the bride's table. Walter (Red) Jessiman proposed the toast.

Out-of-town guests were the bride's brother, Victor Levi, and her cousin, Darwin Cover, both of Kamloops.

For a motor trip to the interior, the bride wore a French-blue tweed suit with bluebell-toned accessories. A corsage of pink carnations completed her ensemble.

On return from their honeymoon, the couple will reside on Kaitasin Road, Milne's Landing.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Ben Carter (MOTHER OF 5)

Games for two—between baby and you—are not only fun but play an important part in helping baby to learn the three big C's—coordination, cooperation and concentration. Anyone for peek-a-boo or patty-cake?

Handy idea. Easy way to determine which hand your baby is going to be handiest with: offer objects at his middle-most point. Natural grasping instinct will soon show which hand wants to take the lead.

Meaty idea. Best "growing tools" for the baby who's growing by leaps and pounds are meat proteins—because they encourage growth and aid in the development of all body structures. Excellent source of high quality proteins: Gerber Strained Meats! Made from selected juicy cuts, they're specially processed to remove most of the fat and coarse tissue—and to preserve the utmost in vitamin and mineral values. All are pure meat with just enough broth to brighten the flavor and enhance the texture.

Seating arrangement. Sit-up babies like a change of scene so why not treat your wee one to a special seating arrangement occasionally. In the living room, say, while you're doing pick-up chores—or just visiting with daddy. A car-seat, attached to chair or davenport, is fun for a change—or even a stroller is fine. Hard to beat "family circle" doings.

For the likes of tykes—a lunch or supper suggestion that's high in appetite appeal.

HONEY-LEMON BEETS—1 container Gerber Strained Beets* 1 tablespoon lemon juice 1½ teaspoon honey ¼ teaspoon salt. Combine ingredients—warm and serve. M-m-m, more please! *Just one of 8 true-flavor Strained Vegetables. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Russians Shell Hospitals In Budapest; Food Scarce

By LYNN HEINZLING

VIENNA (AP)—The shelling of Budapest by Soviet troops reached its highest point Tuesday night, and food in some areas of the city was running out.

Trustworthy information on the besieged city, received in Austria today, gave this picture:

Soviet forces have been systematically trying to wipe out pockets of resistance. Hospitals and clinics were among the targets. At a time Tuesday when Moscow was broadcasting that all resistance had been liquidated, shelling of the city was increasing.

A score of Russian tanks were reported destroyed in one engagement between Russians and Hungarians near the French Legation. This and other legations have been damaged.

About 700 Hungarians continued today to resist in the rubble-filled Killian barracks. In some cases women were manning the guns.

The Hungarian government radio stations abruptly went off the air at mid-day without giving a reason, but there still

Carrier Magnificent Will Be Mobile Base

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today announced Canada will offer a Canadian contingent of more than 1,000 men to the international United Nations force for the Middle East.

Mr. St. Laurent said in a written statement handed to reporters following a three-hour Cabinet meeting that Canada "will be prepared to have this force lifted by the RCAF to the Middle East."

The statement said: "To comply with the resolutions of the United Nations the Canadian government has agreed to make an offer of a Canadian contingent to the emergency international United Nations force for the Middle East. This proposal is subject to adjustment—or re-arrangement—after consultation with the United Nations commander."

"Arrangements have already been made for a group of Canadian officers to be available today for consultation with the UN commander (Maj.-Gen. L. Continued on Page 2)

Eisenhower Wins in Walk

But GOP Falls Behind In Senate, House Races

WASHINGTON (CP)—A troubled United States electorate has turned to a Republican president and a Democratic Congress to guide its destinies in a war-threatened world.

Once again, as in 1952, the sound of distant gunfire casts its shadow over the campaign. And for the second time, by an even more emphatic margin, the voters turned to Dwight Eisenhower.

They gave him 457 of the 531 votes in the electoral college and approximately 58 per cent of the popular vote—both figures in excess of his 1952 victory—as he resoundingly defeated Adlai Stevenson, his Democratic challenger, for the second time. But the same returns that gave overwhelming majorities to Eisenhower in state after state brought news of Democratic victories in congressional returns.

They recaptured the House of Representatives by a margin that appeared, in incomplete re-

President Eisenhower's victory was the greatest Republican presidential win in U.S. history.

It was only the second time that a President of one party was elected while both Houses of Congress were won by the other.

Ike's electoral college vote margin has been exceeded only twice before, both by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

AT A GLANCE

Standings in the U.S. election race, with comparison to 1952, are shown in the following table on the basis of still incomplete returns, but sufficient to give the decision:

turns, to be as large or larger than the 232-to-203 edge they gained in the off-year election of 1954. They led the Republicans 49 to 46 in the Senate with a lead in the remaining seat.

Loss of the Senate was a particularly bitter blow to the Republicans, who had hoped the drawing power of Eisenhower at the head of the ticket would enable them to erase the 49-to-47 margin the Democrats had held for the last two years.

More than a century ago another general, Zachary Taylor, found himself faced with an opposition legislature after the 1848 election. Taylor, a Whig, also was given a Democratic Congress to work with. It hasn't

Popular Vote Spectacular

And despite the unanimous predictions of pre-election forecasters and public opinion polls that Eisenhower's popular vote would be reduced, it shot up as spectacularly as his electoral tally. His steady 58 per cent share of the count compared with the 55.4 per cent he gained against Stevenson in their first contest.

If the voters were dissatisfied, they apparently took it out on rank-and-file Republican candidates. They still liked Ike. They didn't go along with the president on his project of rebuilding the Republican party along the lines of his own liberal thinking as opposed to the more conservative views of the "old guard."

One of Eisenhower's first supporters for the presidency, Senator James Duff, was unseated in Pennsylvania by Joseph S. Clark, Jr., the Democratic mayor of Philadelphia. In Ohio, Senator George Bunker Akers, a consistent supporter of Eisenhower policies, was defeated by Democratic Governor Frank J. Lausche.

Governor Arthur G. Langlie, the president's hand-picked candidate to unseat Washington's Senator Warren G. Magnuson, found the job too much for him and Douglas McKay, who resigned as secretary of the Interior to contest Wayne Morse's seat in Oregon, was defeated by the popular ex-Republican.

There were a couple of notable exceptions to the trend. John Sherman Cooper, whom the president recalled from his post as ambassador to India, successfully returned to the Senate in Kentucky after an absence of two years, downing former Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby.

State Attorney-General Jacob K. Javits bested New York City's Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., in New York to win an important seat from the Democrats.

Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams, bucking the Republican tide, won an unprecedented fourth two-year term and loomed large in future Democratic political plans.

The popular governor has intimated that this will be his last term in the State House—that he plans to have a crack at the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Charles Potter in 1958. By 1960, he could rise still higher.

Poster Furcolo, a Democrat who startled the experts by giving Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall a down-to-the-wire battle in Massachusetts two years ago, had better luck this year in a try for the governorship. He defeated Sumner G. Whitier impressively to take the post vacated by Republican Christian Herter.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE OUT

A couple of candidates who ran independently after losing in their party's state primaries got nowhere, running a poor third and failing to force the defeat of the men who beat them.

Glenn Taylor, the banjo-playing former senator who ran for vice-president on Henry Wallace's Progressive party ticket in 1948, ran against Frank Church, who beat him in the Idaho senatorial primary. Mr. Church beat him badly and ousted old-guard Republican Senator Herman Welker into the bargain.

In Utah, the voters failed to sympathize with J. Bracken Lee, the isolationist governor, who wouldn't pay his income tax. Denied renomination in the primary, Lee finished a bad last behind Republican George D. Clyde.

As the campaign started, the chief cause for discontent appeared to be in some agricultural areas, where farmers tended to blame Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson's flexible price-support system for a falling-off in prices.

The Democrats wooed the farmers vigorously, promising a return to the high, rigid supports offered by Democratic presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

HUNGARY

under secretary of state for foreign affairs, said reports to Britain indicated fighting was still going on in Budapest late Tuesday night despite repeated Russian demand for surrender of the rebels' arms.

"According to a Red Cross report, civilian casualties from Russian firing have become very heavy. There is a complete curfew and anyone seen on the streets is liable to be shot by Soviet troops."

Hope said the Communists had abandoned pretence that Hungarians are fighting side by side with the Russians. "The fighting in Hungary bears the exclusive character of a Soviet repressive campaign," he said. Hope appealed to Moscow on behalf of the British government to grant permission for Red Cross convoys to enter Hungary with food and medicine from Vienna.

An Italian newspaper claimed it had succeeded in establishing brief contact with a rebel radio transmitter in the battered Hungarian capital and was informed that fighting still raged.

Milan's Catholic newspaper Italia said it had received a rebel newspaper message saying Budapest was still a scene of battle, with many Soviet tanks and artillery weapons shelling parts of the town. The report said resistance centred in the capital's districts of Transtari and Kohanya.

The Bavarian radio network at Goumich quoted a rebel radio broadcast as saying Dunapentele still was in the hands of the insurgents.

Russian tanks and troops launched their attack Sunday to wipe out the Hungarian bid for independence. All telephone and telegraph communications between Vienna and Budapest still were cut today. A similar communications blackout covered neighboring Romania.

Radio Budapest, voice of the new Soviet-installed Hungarian government, Tuesday night broadcast a pledge of "eternal friendship" with the Soviet Union, on the 39th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

REJECT AID

Radio Budapest also turned down Western offers of relief supplies, saying "our pride forbids us to accept the imperialist aid."

It said assistance was pouring in from Russia and that Romania had promised to send building materials, foods and medicines.

Radio Pecs, a station in southern Hungary now held by the Russians, called for assistance of the population in disarming rebel bands. The Soviet commander there said Russian guns would be turned on any house from which rebels were firing.

Radio Free Europe quoted a broadcast from Rakoczy Radio, a rebel transmitter in southwestern Hungary, as saying: "The Russians demand that we lay down our arms. We won't do it, and if it is necessary we will fight to our last drop of blood."

Other information reaching Vienna said Soviet troops had fired on the Yugoslav legation in Budapest, killing a young diplomat and wounding several members of the legation staff.

Protests against the Soviet action in Hungary erupted at Luxembourg, where a group of 2,000 demonstrators stormed into the Soviet legation, tossed furniture out windows and burned it in the courtyard.

A foreign ministry official in New Delhi said Russia's Premier Bulganin had replied to Prime Minister Nehru's message expressing India's concern at developments in Hungary. He said Bulganin blamed "foreign influences" for the Hungarian uprisings.

M. Burns of Canada) in New York as soon as he arrives."

The statement said the Canadian contingent would be augmented by ordinance, army service corps and medical and dental detachments to ensure that the group is self-contained and can operate independently from its own base.

MOBILE BASE

It added Canada proposes to provide this contingent with a temporary mobile Canadian base for the first phase of its policing operations.

"The Canadian government," the statement continued, "is prepared to use HMCS Magnificent (aircraft carrier) for the purpose of transporting vehicles and stores to the Middle East and for use as a temporary mobile Canadian base for rations, medical supplies, ammunition, fuel and limited accommodation stores."

"HMCS Magnificent will also provide a small hospital to accommodate the sick and injured in the force; accommodation for a force headquarters and communications between the force outside Canada."

The unit to be sent has not yet been selected but it has been decided to draw Canada's UN forces from this country rather than from her NATO brigade in Germany, he said.

Canada does not want to "diminish" her NATO forces overseas, Mr. St. Laurent said. The Canadian contingent will not be ready to move for several weeks. Certain "health precautions" had to be taken, presumably inoculations.

The actual cabinet order designating the Canadian force to be shipped has not yet been signed. Mr. St. Laurent said another cabinet meeting is scheduled for the afternoon.

He made clear last Monday that a special session of Parliament will be called within 10 days after the cabinet order is signed to get parliamentary approval of funds required for the troops.

Before the cabinet meeting Mr. St. Laurent said he thinks Canada is getting more credit than Russia for the cease-fire in Egypt.

PRIVATE MATTER

He was asked by a reporter whether his confidential letter to Sir Anthony Eden Monday had anything to do with the cease-fire called Tuesday night.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not divulge the contents of his private correspondence with the British prime minister.

The reporter suggested Russia should not get all the credit for the cease-fire by threatening Britain and France with attack.

"I think we are getting more credit than the Russians," Mr. St. Laurent said.

forces to resume fighting "if the enemy shoots at anyone or advances one inch."

(At Allied Headquarters in Cyprus Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, commander-in-chief of Anglo-French forces, told correspondents in a written statement today "there has been no fighting since the cease-fire became operative." His statement added Anglo-French casualties in the occupation of Port Said were just over 100 killed and wounded.)

Eden repeated an assurance he gave Tuesday: Britain and France "have not the slightest intention" of moving from the positions their forces had taken up by midnight Tuesday night.

NEHRU GETS RUSS PLEDGE THEY'LL QUIT HUNGARY . . . IF

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Premier Bulganin has assured India's Prime Minister Nehru that Russia will negotiate with the Hungarian government on withdrawal of Soviet troops "when peace and order is restored" in Hungary, it was announced here today.

Bulganin, replying to an Indian note expressing concern and distress over the situation, said Soviet troops intervened in Hungary only after "counter-revolutionary elements" had taken over.

Bulganin was understood to have promised that he would send Nehru another message on the subject.

Steel Smelter In Crow's Nest

French Group Backs Western Canada's First Plant; Will Cost $5 Million

CALGARY (CP)—Construction of a $5,000,000 steel smelter at Burmis at the eastern end of the Crow's Nest Pass will get under way in the next few days, W. A. Kovach, Social Credit MLA for Pincher Creek-Crow's Nest said Tuesday.

He predicted in an interview the new industry and first steel smelter in Western Canada would eventually transform the area into the "little Pittsburgh" of Alberta.

Consultations were held in Calgary Monday between a French banking and industrial group and T. A. Brusset, president of West Canadian Petroleum, affiliated with West Canadian Collieries which has extensive coal interests in the pass.

Mr. Kovach said the group has found an economical way to smelt low-grade ore in the area which could not be processed by present methods. Limestone deposits are also nearby.

Phosphate contained in the ore could be used in fertilizer manufacture. This would replace supplies brought in from the United States for mixing with nitrogen extracted from natural gas at the Medicine Hat plant of Northwest Nitro Chemicals.

Members of the French group involved in the project are M. A. de Boissieu, president of the Union Europeenne Bank, Paris; M. Dhavernas, Montreal; M. E. de Lauriston, Paris.

Korean Plane Missing; Attacked by Red Jets

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean government said two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters attacked two South Korean F-51 propeller-driven fighters today.

The South Koreans said one of their planes was missing.

An announcement said the F-51s were on a regular training flight "bound for the west coast," but did not pinpoint the attack location.

One of the planes was said to have returned with 20 bullet holes.

BRITISH TROOPS GO OFF TO WAR: -- Nightly Movie, Queue for Rum

By JOHN CRIDER

AT SEA WITH THE ROYAL NAVY (UP) (Delayed)—British troops went to war today watching an Alec Guinness movie and drinking rum from a barrel labelled "God Save the Queen."

The movie and the rum were two of the regular routines kept by officers aboard this British cruiser as she moved in to join the bombardment of military objectives at Port Said.

Her captain, a be-medalled veteran of Second World War, said he kept up the normal routine of nightly movies and a daily ration of rum to help keep morale high. But by the look of the crew, they didn't need any boost. Their morale was high already.

The movies were shown in the ship's wardroom. Medical orderlies were already laying it out for use as a surgery when we went into action later, and surgical instruments glinted in the light from the screen.

Outside, seamen were queuing for the daily ration of rum, a tradition in the Royal Navy for over 150 years. It was passed out from a huge oak cask labelled "God Save the Queen."

Asian and African diplomats were solidly in attendance. Several hundred thousand civilians shouted "glory to the Soviet Union" as they marched almost endlessly through Red Square.

FLY-PAST OMITTED

The usual fly-past of jet bombers and fighters was omitted, presumably because of a low overcast. The 21-minute procession of Soviet army units through the square showed new military equipment. There was the usual display of motorized guns, troop carriers, armored cars, rocket launchers and heavy anti-aircraft cannon.

Civilian marchers carried banners demanding "Hands off Egypt" and "Out of Egypt, imperialist aggressors." Other banners praised the Hungarian workers for defeating fascism.

The wartime Soviet hero told the mass rally: "The Soviet Union calls upon the United Nations resolutely to stop the armed aggression of Britain, France and Israel against Egypt and actively to support the Arab peoples in their struggle for freedom and independence."

"As regards the Soviet Union, she is prepared, in accordance with a UN decision to take a real part with her armed forces in the liquidation of this aggression."

Zhukov's speech renewed demands for intervention in Egypt voiced two days ago by Premier Bulganin.
